Parking Meters Will Be Given 6 Months' Trial

Council Takes Action After Committee Reports Favorably

VOTE IS 7 TO 4

Will be Installed on Avenue From Durkee to Superior Streets

What Council Did:

Voted 7 and 4 to give parking meters a 6-months' trial on College avenue between Durkee and Superior streets.

Granted permission to Veterans of Foreign Wars to sponsor carnival at circus grounds in city. (Story on Page 10).

Confirmed mayor's reappointments to library board.

Parking meters wil be given a 6-months' trial on College avenue between Durkee and Superior streets the common council decided last night by a 7 and 4 vote after debating advantages and disadvantages for nearly an hour.

The problem of parking meters, which lay dormant through the winter when the council, after months of study and debate voted against their installation, 6 to 5, popped up again last night through a report of the traffic regulations committee which met yesterday with a representative of the Parkrite corporation.

Installation of the meters in the four blocks on both sides of the street for the trial period at no cost to the city was recommended by the committee.

Aldermen Opposed

Aldermen opposed were DeLand, Harriman, Kubitz and Thompson. Alderman VanderHeyden was absent. Carrying the arguments for the meters were Aldermen Knuijt and Brautigam. Stating that use of meters would come eventually, Knuijt declared that the constant debate on parking on the avenue will be ended provided the meters prove successful. He pointed to the alleged seriousness of present congested parking on the avenue and said it already had been proposed to abolish all parking on the street on Saturday nights.

Claiming he had heard of no demand for parking meters on the avenue, Alderman DeLand advised that further study be made before action was taken. He was surprised at the recommendation, he said, as the council only last year decided against them.

Alderman Brautigam said the trial offer of the company was one which would cost the city no money if unsuccessful. Use of the meters would make it unecessary to keep a patrolman checking cars on the avenue and a regulation could be set up whereby motorists violating it could pay a fine of $1 at the police station, thus eliminating court costs, he said.

Won't Solve Problem

That parking meters would offer no more parking space on the avenue than there is at the present time, and that there is no change in the conditions of a year ago was the assertion of Alderman Thompson. The meters would serve to discourage out-of-city shoppers from doing their business in Appleton, he said.

Aldermen Steinhauer, McGillan, Grignon and Keller spoke in favor of giving the meters a trial. Believing the meters to be an aid in traffic regulation personally, Alderman Harriman said he would oppose them because business men and the general public were opposed to them.

Suggesting that the new parking ordinance cutting time on the avenue and immediate side streets first be given trial, Alderman Kubitz opposed the meters. Mayor Goodland, however, said that giving the meters a trial now would settle the problem without further argument. If successful the revenue could be put in a traffic fund and used for street purposes, he said.

The meters will provide for 60-minute parking for 5 cents. When the time is up a flag automatically raises. Because of their installation the new parking regulations for the avenue and sidestreets recently approved by the council will not be put into effect and a new ordinance will be drawn.

SERVICE WITH A GULP

A short film has been released in which most of the action takes place in an underwater night club. In this unusual place (which might be called a "low dive") the liquid refreshments consisted of water cocktails, and to get a drink all a guest had to do was to open his mouth and ask for it. And all any one has to do to get anything he needs is to run a Post-Crescent Want Ad like this:

SINGLE HORSE HARNESS
Wanted to buy. Tel. 6783

Received 24 calls and secured harness.

Over Half Million Face Starvation In Bilbao, Report

Food Distribution System Within City Breaks Down

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier—(P)—More than 500,000 civilians were reported starving in refugee-swamped Bilbao today because of a breakdown of food distribution within the harrassed city.

Insurgent General Francisco Franco's legions pushed a broad offensive to the edge of Bilbao today, occupying the international airfield and climbing the last two hills at the western entrance to the Basque capital.

The invaders slowly closed the last gaps in their plan of encirclement and mapped a new drive on Santander, 45 miles west of Bilbao.

Ready For Advance

Indications were the march on Santander would begin at nightfall should Franco's soldiers succeed in bottling up Bilbao and occupying that objective by that time.

There were rumors the Basques and their Asturian allies were planning to dynamite the rich industrial capital rather than let it fall into the hands of the insurgents.

Insurgent shock troops, fully equipped to cope with Basques in last stand street fighting, massed at the outskirts of Bilbao, ready for a quick assault to "save" the city from such destruction.

Advices reaching Hendaye said Franco's forces had crossed the Nervion river both north and south of Bilbao.

Insurgents also were reported to have captured three government boatloads of 3,000 refugees fleeing the besieged city.

In London, the European nonintervention committee called a session for Friday to again consider an appeal to both sides in the Spanish civil conflict to refrain from aerial bombardment of open cities. Germany and Italy will be represented.

Assembly Passes Housing Measure

Bill Proposes to Let Cities Create Low-Cost Building Groups

Madison —(P)— The Bill of Assemblyman Ben Rubin (P.), Milwaukee, permitting first, second and third class cities to create low-cost housing corporations was passed by the assembly today, 60 to 30.

The bill is an enabling act which the author said will allow Wisconsin communities to take advantage of federal aid for slum clearance and construction of homes for persons of low income.

The principal opponent was Assemblyman Arthur R. Ludvigsen (R.), Hartland, who claimed that federal housing projects carried on under the national relief administration had been a dismal failure and that there is plenty of private enterprise to supply all housing needs.

The bill authorizes a city governing body to create a commission of five members which can issue its bonds independent of the municipality. Each local body would be known as a housing authority.

The opposition held the bill in the assembly temporarily at the request of Assemblyman Francis Murphy (D), Milwaukee. Murphy criticised the provision that municipal houses shall be exempted from the tax roll. The majority did not have sufficient votes to suspend the rules and send the measure to the senate.

WDA Bill Sent To Assembly; O.K. Expected

Senate Gives Approval to Measure After Six-Hour Battle

FACTIONS IN CLASH

Opponents of Bill Walk Out Twice but Return Voluntarily

Madison — (P) — Passage of the Kannenberg Wisconsin development authority bill, appropriating $60,000 a year for a state power program, climaxed a turbulent six-hour battle in the senate late yesterday

The bill now goes to the assembly, which already has placed its stamp of approval on the WDA proposal by passing an almost identical measure.

Two walkouts by opponents of the bill, issuance of subpenas for their reappearance, and their voluntary return highlighted the senate session.

When the Progressive majority shut off debate on the measure at noon, a dozen Republicans and Democrats marched out of the chamber. A roll call on passage showed 15 senators in favor of the bill and 2 opposed.

A constitutional requirement of a three-fifths quorum for action on appropriation bills then forced the Progressives to retrace their steps, Senator Walter Rush (P) Neillsville, the president pro tem, ruling the measure retained its status prior to the roll call.

Absentees Return

After a call of the house forced the return of the absentees, Senator Maurice Coakley (R), Beloit leader of the walkout, challenged the legality of further action on the bill, declaring it was dead after the insufficient quorum voted. He was overruled by the house.

Then he led another march from the chamber in the face of the call.

Soviet Republic Chief Kills Self

'Family Reasons' Given as Official Explanation For Death

Moscow —(P)— Josef Stalin's regime pushed its mass cleanup of opposition elements today after announcing that the president of one of the country's 11 socialist republics had killed himself.

With at least 151 persons executed within a year for alleged anti-government activity, officials disclosed hundred of arrests had been made throughout the Soviet Union and hundreds of thousands had been ousted from the communist party.

Alexander G. Cherviakoff, leader of the white Russian soviet socialist republic, which adjoins Poland, was said by the government to have committed suicide.

The official explanation was "family reasons." But he had been denounced at a communist party meeting at Minsk, capital of white Russia. 45 of his colleagues had been seized on treason charges, and the former commander of the white Russian army garrison, General I. P. Uborevitch, was executed June 12 with seven other high army officers for plotting to "dismember" the U. S. S. R.

BULLETIN

Madsion—(P)—Seven Madison Central High school senior boys were taken to hospitals and a score of others were treated by doctors on the scene following the collapse this afternoon of a photographer's stand on the school grounds. About 50 of the 190 seniors had climbed on the temporary stand at an entrance to the school when the structure collapsed, throwing most of them about eight feet to the ground. First reports indicated none was fatally hurt, that a majority suffered cuts and bruises.

Treasury Head In Attack Upon Tax Avoidance

Hopes Publicity Will Help Put End to 'Dodging' by Rich

APPEARS AT HEARING

List of Names to be Submitted Later to Joint Committee

Washington — (P) — Secretary Morgenthau told a congressional inquiry committee today he hoped that "continued publicity" on methods of alleged tax evasion and tax avoidance would help to stop tax dodging.

Morgenthau, first witness at the joint senate-house investigation into evasion and avoidance, asserted that "a variety of devices to avoid taxes" have been used in recent years. "The situation calls for remedial legislation," he said.

Morgenthau's statement contained no names of asserted tax evaders or tax avoiders.

Treasury officials, however, reported that a list of names has been compiled for later submission to the joint committee.

In a statement read to the committee, Morgenthau struck repeatedly at rich taxpayers who he said employ "expensive attorneys" to avoid taxes.

Alarmed Over Attitude

The secretary expressed concern over what he termed an attitude of many that tax avoidance is "a legitimate and honorable aim."

"Nevertheless," he continued, "I am hopeful that the continued publicity which hearings of this sort give with respect to the game of tax avoidance may help to create an atmosphere in which men will hesitate to use these artificial devices to avoid the payment of taxes just as today they hesitate to use such devices to escape the payment of private debt."

Morgenthau said that publicity on "the more fantastic methods of tax avoidance now considered legitimate" may create an attitude against tax dodging.

The treasury chief traced various methods of tax evasion, re-outling devices described in President Roosevelt's recent message to congress on evasion and advoidance.

Morgenthau, who made the preliminary tax survey on which Mr. Roosevelt's message was based, told the committee that one of the chief tax avoidance devices "is the creation of a multiple personality in the taxpayer."

"Several People"

"By this device," the secretary continued, "he ceases to be a single individual and becomes a whole

Vote Right to Accept Land for Fish Hatchery

Madison —(P)—The assembly voted authority to the conservation commission today to acquire by gift a 90-acre tract of land on the shores of Lake Winnebago in Fond du Lac county for construction of a fish hatchery.

The bill was passed to the senate without debate by a 64 to 14 vote It contained an amendment by Assemblyman E. J. Hoesly (P), New Glarus, chairman of the finance committee, that the fish hatchery shall not be constructed until the conservation commission determined it has sufficient funds.

The author of the bill, Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimons (D), Fond du Lac, said the amendment was acceptable.

The land is located in the town of Taycheedah and is now owned by Fond du Lac county.

Wins Parole After He Pleads Guilty of Fraud

Janesville —(P)— A parole of one year to one year and a day under the state board of control was granted Robert J. Holman, 44, Chicago securities salesman, late yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of fraud. Leniency was shown him because he already had been in jail two months awaiting sentence and was ready to appear against his associate, Harry Kassmir, 40, Chicago. Kassmir earlier in the day had been given 12 to 18 months in Waupun for defrauding a Rock county farmer of a certificate of deposit for a $500 bond.

Compulsory Health Insurance Bill Is Beaten in Assembly by 62 to 26 Vote

Madison —(P)— The Biemiller compulsory health insurance bill, levying a pay roll tax of $27,000,000 against employers and workers to pay the cost, met quick death in the assembly today by a vote of 62 to 26

The measure was the largest and most controversial of a series of medical bills introduced by Assemblyman Andrew J. Biemiller, Milwaukee Socialist.

It proposed to place sickness insurance upon a basis similar to that of unemployment insurance and provided for the appointment of a director, working with an advisory council of doctors, to extend protection against health hazards to more than 1,000,000 Wisconsin citizens.

The author of the bill and the opposition disagreed upon the number of persons actually to be covered. Biemiller estimated the number at 1,200,000 according to social security figures. Assemblyman Robert A. Tehan (D), Milwaukee, said it would cover 1,600,000 and that the tax feature was not sufficient to supply all the services the bill required.

Although the measure was conceded no chance of passage the house adopted two amendments which assured its defeat.

One by Assemblyman Charles A. Budlong (R), Marinette, included tuberculosis patients among those to be granted insurance.

Another by Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimons (D), Fond du Lac, and Vernon Thomson (R), Richland Center, exempted all persons opposed to "socialized medicine."

Biemiller denied the bill attempted to socialize medicine and said it was merely a plan to spread the cost of medical service among persons now unable to meet the cost The opponents argued it was dangerous in placing a third party—the government—between the doctor and the patient.

Labor Secretary Names Board Of Three to Mediate Current Disputes in Steel Industry

Sit-Down Strike Threatened in Mahoning Valley

STICK TO DEMANDS

Steel Spokesmen Uncertain About Mediation Plan

Cleveland, Ohio—(P)— The threat of a sit-down strike in the great steel mills of the Mahoning valley, in Ohio, developed today as Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced the appointment of a three-man board to mediate the long-fought strike deadlock.

Spokesmen for the Republic Steel corporation and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., two of the principal independents involved in the strike, said they did not know if the companies would agree that the mediation board arbitrate the dispute.

They explained that Tom Girdler, Republic chairman, and Frank Purnell, president of Sheet and Tube, were "out of town" and any statement would have to come from them.

John Owens, Ohio strike chief of the C. I. O., said that a projected back-to-work movement in Mahoning valley steel plants would inevitably result in sit-down strikes if the plants re-open before the union obtains signed contracts.

Would "Hold Fort"

The sit-down strategy, as outlined by Owens, would be for the strikers to return to their posts—along with those genuinely anxious to resume work—and once inside to "hold the fort" in idleness.

As moves for peace and a new plan of strategy in the C. I. O. siege of steel broke simultaneously, the general executive board of the United Automobile Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, took steps to "penalize" and discipline leaders of "outlaw" or unauthorized strikes.

Homer Martin, U. A. W. president, announced in Detroit that the board would determine methods of ending any such "wildcat" strikes."

Bloodshed entered the far-flung "battle of steel" again at Canton, Ohio, where a picket, Stephen Mann, 19, was shot in the arm during the first shipment of steel from the Canton Republic Steel plant since the strike was called.

The wounded man said a railroad policeman shot him without provocation as he was watching the movement of 14 carloads into the plant and 47 carloads outward bound.

Two men were beaten in a clash at the Franklin plant of Bethlehem's Cambria works in Johnstown. Neither was injured seriously.

Non-strikers slipped into the huge works as Washington pondered appeals to intervene in the labor controversy, which has made 10,000

Says Mrs. Lester Trailed Husband

Taxicab Driver Testifies in Murder Trial at Manitowoc

Manitowoc—(P)—A taxicab driver testified in circuit court today that Mrs. Letha Lester, on trial on a murder charge, trailed her husband, Earl, and a woman around Manitowoc for several hours four nights before Lester was found shot to death.

Mrs Lester is charged with shooting her husband as they rode home from Green Bay on Valentine's day. The authorities said she told them she had found Lester and the woman in a roadhouse near Green Bay.

The cab driver, George Winkelman, told a jury of nine men and three women he drove Mrs. Lester when she followed Lester and the woman from one tavern to another last Feb. 10.

The couple finally visited a hotel and stood at the bar talking for some time, Winkelman said

Asked if Mrs Lester discussed her activities, Winkelman said:

"She said she had to catch Earl and the other woman and force her to leave town."

Eugene Spevachek, a deputy who went to the scene with Sheriff Norman Berkedahl, substantiated earlier testimony of the sheriff, quoting Mrs. Lester as saying, "I did it; he was no good"

The sheriff said Mrs Lester told him she shot her husband while they were driving to their Manitowoc home from Green Bay

Jule Henriotte, a hardware store clerk, said he sold Mrs Lester a revolver Feb. 11 He said she told him she wanted the weapon for protection against robbery.

Cashier Accused of Making False Entry

Wautoma, Wis. —(P)— A warrant charging Alan A. Gibbs with making a false entry for $4,100 on the books of the Coloma (Wis.) State bank was issued here yesterday on complaint of H. F. Bartz, bank president. Gibs, the cashier, left the bank Tuesday after state bank examiners arrived for a routine checkup. At his home, it was said his whereabouts were not known.

ON MEDIATION BOARD

Dean Lloyd K. Garrison (above) of the University of Wisconsin law school said today he would be unable to begin work with the new steel disputes mediation board until next week.

"I have accepted appointment," he said, "but I told Secretary Perkins I would not be able to leave Madison before Monday night or Tuesday morning." Other members of the board are Charles P. Taft and Edward F. McGrady.

County, Federal Agents Disagree On Parsons Case

New York Officials Believe Missing Society Woman Was Slain

Stony Brook, N. Y.—(P)— Sharply growing differences of opinion between the federal men and Suffolk county authorities investigating the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Alice McDonell Parsons, Long Island society matron, was evidenced today as the government agents pursued a kidnaping theory, the others expressing the belief she was slain.

A Suffolk county offical, who asked that his name be withheld, said the county and state authorities and the agents of the federal bureau of investigation were reaching a climax in their relations.

The federal men think it is a kidnaping," he said. "We think it is murder, and we are ready to proceed on that theory and to act quickly. There seems to be evidence enough to make it possible to present the case to a grand jury."

This official said robbery did not appear to be the motive, so far as the local men could determine but declined to comment further along this line.

Secret Headquarters?

Even while this official was talking, however, reports were growing that the federal agents, still clinging to the kidnaping theory, had established secret headquarters 20 miles away from the trim little white farmhouse from which Mrs. Parsons vanished eight days ago.

And still another report had it that a person who represented himself as the kidnaper communicated with the Parsons family promising to return the 38-year-old missing woman if the $25,000 ransom, originally demanded in a note, were paid and immunity from police intervention guaranteed.

Neither of these reports could be confirmed at once, since Earl J. Connelley, inspector in charge of the federal men, and Rhea Whitley, head of the New York office who has been working with him, left here yesterday on some undisclosed mission and were still absent today

Their absence, however, did not hold up the search of the woods which has been going on since Monday.

Missing Scientist Is Found Safe on Island

Seattle—(P)— A message stating that John Holt Steenis, 31, Madison, Wis., scientist lost four days on Agattu island far out in the Aleutians, has been found well and uninjured was received at coast guard headquarters here late yesterday

The message from Commander H. R. Searles of the coast guard Bering sea patrol, said:

"Federal Biologist John Steenis found well and uninjured Cyane will proceed to Attu to overhaul island radio.

Steenis, a biological survey bird scientist, failed to rejoin the party working from the survey ship Brown Bear last Saturday. He had been left there to make a survey of bird life on the wild, uninhabited island 1,200 miles west of the Alaskan mainland.

The coast guard cutter Cyane put out from Unalaska to race 800 miles to the scene to aid in the search. The biological survey also called upon the navy for the use of a seaplane to aid them. Steenis, a University of Washington graduate, entered government service in 1935.

LaFollette Bill On Reorganization Is Being Drafted

Measure to be Presented to Legislature Within Two Weeks

Madison—(P)—Governor LaFollette's reorganization bill, placing responsibility for the administration of each state department with a single executive, will be introduced in the legislature within two weeks, the executive office announced today.

Shortly before leaving for Cambridge, Mass., to be a guest at the Harvard commencement exercises the governor met with a special legislative committee yesterday and tentatively outlined his reorganization views to effect "economy and more efficient operation" in the administration of state government.

The general plan he presented was to invest policy making powers in the hands of the part-time commissions, with the exception of the tax and public service commissions, and place complete administrative responsibility with a single director for each department.

The director would be subject to removal through joint action of his commission and the governor.

New Proposal

The chief executive offered something entirely new in the form of an interim legislative committee of five senators and seven assemblymen, and in conjunction with the governor, could transfer powers and duties from one department to another between sessions of the legislature.

Nearly all of the important state bureaus are now headed by three full-time commissioners, an arrangement which the governor said results in a division of administrative responsibility.

An automobile driven by Ben Goldberg and Marcel Schwartz's fish truck were involved in the accident. Goldberg's machine, in which Mrs. Schulte, Mrs Ring, and Mrs. John Beckman were riding, was found in the roadside ditch 100 feet away from the place of the crash, which occurred last evening

The girls were daughters of Schwartz. The Manske child was his nephew They were passengers in the truck

All occupants of the two machines were unconscious when brought to a local hospital Mrs Schulte and the girls died shortly after admittance. The Manske boy died several hours later. Mrs. Ring died today.

Asks Per Capita Fund For Menominee Indians

Washington—(P)—Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Wisconsin drafted an amendment today to the interior department appropriation bill to provide a per capita payment to the Menominee Indian tribe of Wisconsin.

The proposed amendment, to be submitted to the senate appropriations committee, will call for appropriation of $105,000

This amount, Duffy said, would provide for a per capita payment of $50

Income of the tribe for the last fiscal year was more than $1,000,000, Duffy said He added he would pass for approval of his amendment on the senate floor if it is rejected by the committee The amendment provides that the proposed payment substitutes for one authorized under a 1934 act for the fair market stumpage value of the timber cut on the Menominee reservation during 1937.

Claims Communities Are Facing Bankruptcy

Kenosha—(P)—City Manager Harold C Laughlin said he saw Wisconsin communities today with their backs to the wall of financial bankruptcy, facing disintegration from pressing financial problems unknown a generation ago.

Laughlin told a Kiwanis club audience yesterday that Governor Philip LaFollette's $66,000,000 budget for the next two years is $20,000,000 more than the probable state income for the same period.

He said an additional $74,000,000 for expenditures not provided in the budget would be exacted from state communities utterly unprepared to shoulder the burden.

'Voluntary Arbitration' If Both Sides So Request

HAS ROOSEVELT O. K.

Taft, Garrison and McGrady are Members Of Board

Washington —(P)— Secretary Perkins announced today appointment of a three-man board to mediate all current steel disputes.

She named Charles P. Taft, Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, and assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady as a federal steel mediation board authorized to investigate, conduct hearings, make findings of fact and act as "voluntary arbitrator" if both sides in the controversy so request.

Labor department officials said Taft, a Cincinnati lawyer, had experience in arbitration of strikes in Ohio. He was an adviser to Governor Alf M. Landon, the Republican presidential nominee, during the 1936 campaign.

Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin Law school, formerly was chairman of the labor relations board. He is a graduate of Harvard Law school and formerly practiced in New York city.

McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, for many years has been associated with the organized labor movement. He was a vice president of the American Federation of Labor when President Roosevelt named him to the little cabinet.

Offices in Cleveland

Miss Perkins said the board would set up headquarters at Cleveland immediately.

She said McGrady, who is returning from Europe, would arrive in the United States Saturday night.

The secretary said she had been in communication with Taft and Garrison and that they would start work at once.

She said President Roosevelt had given his approval to her executive order creating the board.

"I discussed the matter with President Roosevelt Monday and at that time he agreed if no settlement was reached before we came to this, it should be done," the secretary said.

The secretary's administrative order declared "an emergency has arisen as a result of the labor dispute in the steel industry which tends to obstruct and interrupt the free flow of raw materials semi-finished and finished steel products in interstate commerce."

"Reasonable Solution"

"It is desirable," the order said, "to provide an additional means of accomplishing a reasonable solution to this controversy."

The secretary said "in my judgment the interests of industrial peace require" that the board be created.

She said this action had been delayed because the administration had hoped that conferences called by Governor Martin L. Davey of Ohio might produce an agreement which would lead to settlement of the strike.

The decision was reached after President Roosevelt received from Governor Davey a request for presidential intervention.

Lewis at Capital

Secretary Perkins was called immediately to confer with the president. John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, cancelled a speaking engagement at Chicago, to remain in the city. The Steel Workers' Organizing Committee which called strikes in four companies is affiliated with C.I.O.

As executive action came Philip Murray, steel workers' leader, charged before a senate committee

Senate Refuses to Permit Increase in Number of Regents

Madison —(P)— The senate reaffirmed its previous stand today against increasing the membership of the University of Wisconsin board of regents by defeating the Leverich bill to add one member and require that five be "practical farmers."

The bill was killed by acclamation after a speech by Senator John Cashman (P), Denmark, who declared "the farmer members of the board have been only 'yes men' and no credit to the farmers or to anybody."

Cashman counseled his colleagues "not to waste so much time on the University of Wisconsin. Let the governor have the responsibility of appointing a smaller group of regents who will tend to their business and not be 'yes men'."

The senate already has voted its approval of the Roethe bill, reducing the number of regents from 14 to 9, on a test vote.

Senators killed by acclamation two bills by Senator Arthur Zimny (D), Milwaukee which would have prevented the city of Milwaukee from rehiring married women as teachers and required retirement of teachers at 65, and committee bill which would have pemitted retail liquor stores to remain open until 1 a. m. The present closing hour is 9 p. m.

Bicycle Races to Be Held June 29 At Wilson School

Appleton Boys and Girls To Take Part in Y. M. C. A. Program

Bicycle racing will make its debut in Appleton at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon, June 29, when the Y. M. C. A. boy's work department sponsors races for Appleton cyclists at the Wilson Junior High school athletic field. Boys and girls who haven't finished high school are eligible for the races.

The races are part of the Y. M. C. A. program to organize a bicycle club in Appleton in an effort to curb reckless bike driving, promote safety and teach all riders the correct methods of traveling. Mr. Bailey will contact several boys and girls this week and have them help in organizing the club.

After a club is organized, it is planned to hold 1-day bicycle hikes to scenic spots in the vicinity and other places of amusement. When on a trip, club members will travel county trunk and other little used highways. It is expected that the Appleton Police department will assist in promoting this bicycle club.

Warning Issued On Chick Disease

Milk Flush, Sanitation Used in Control of Coccidiosis

A warning to poultrymen to watch for development of coccidiosis in young chicks has been issued by J. B. Hayes, extension poultryman of the college of agriculture.

"For this, the one remedy now is a milk flush," Hayes stated. "To 60 pounds of mash add 40 pounds of dried milk. Feed this ration for five or six days, clean the house and move it to a new range. Although the cost of such a ration may seem high, extra benefits are obtained from the high feeding value of milk in this amount.

"Perhaps the best sanitation program is one of prevention. In spite of a well organized sanitation program, trouble may still result and when it does happen there will be an adventage in using the milk flush suggested, and to keep the chicks moving onto clean ground. The special circular, "Coccidiosis in Chickens," may be obtained from the county agent's office."

May Provide New Buildings for Vets at Waupaca

Senate Bill Authorizes Lease of Land for Structures

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — New buildings at the Waupaca veterans home, long urged as necessary, may be provided soon if the legislature approves a bill introduced in the state senate by the joint committee on finance Wednesday.

The bill would authorize the board of managers of the institution to lease land on the site of the home to a non-profit sharing corporation which would build a heating plant, hospitals and other buildings as directed by the board, which buildings would be rented to the state and eventually purchased.

Non-Profit Corporation

As explained by the finance committee chairman, E. Merwyn Rowlands of Cambria, the device is identical to that used by the university for the construction of the football stadium and a number of dormitories and the board of control for the completion of the school for girls at Oregon. Rowlands explained that the officers of the home and state officials would form a non-profit corporation for the expansion of the buildings and facilities of the institution.

The bill provides that the process shall not result in any state indebtedness, and that all building plans must be submitted for the approval of the governor and the state engineer. All new buildings thus built would be exempt from taxation.

After the buildings are completed, federal revenues for the home will be allocated for rentals, and any surplus will be applied toward the purchase fund. The board of managers would also be authorized to accept gifts to be used for rental and purchase.

WANT RETIREMENT PLAN

Madison — Support of the Wisconsin Public Employes association's retirement bill is requested by 160 employes of the Grand Army Home for Veterans at Waupaca in a communication to the legislature.

A petition signed by most of the employes at the Waupaca institution asks members of the legislature to vote for the retirement system proposed by the association, and now awaiting action. Observers believe that the bill, which provides for compulsory retirement of all state employes at 70, and voluntary retirement at 65, will pass.

The bill would cover all state employes except elective and appointive officials, teachers covered by the teachers retirement fund or university professors otherwise provided for, part time employes, and temporary employes.

Maximum guaranteed annuity would be $45 a month for service of 20 years or more. The state would match employe contributions to the retirement fund as follows: 1 per cent for 1937-38; 2 per cent for 1938-39; 3 per cent for 1939-40; 4 per cent for 1940-41; 5 per cent for 1941-42, and five per cent thereafter.

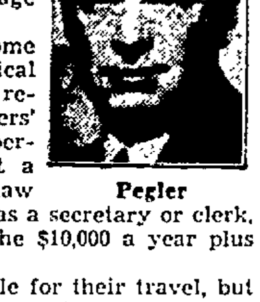
Eligible for Pension but Doesn't Pay Income Tax

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington—As a preliminary to the congressional investigation of moral and civil delinquency on the part of persons who pay no more than their legal dues under the income tax, the house of representatives has turned down a bill which would have imposed a local income tax on the boys, themselves.



Pegler

The District of Columbia faces a deficit of $6,000,000 for the coming fiscal year, and a small income tax was proposed, among other measures, to meet the problem. This bill would have taxed the congressmen and their secretaries, clerks and political appointees residing in Washington, and indignant cries rang through the historic halls of the sacred heritage on capitol hill.

Incidentally, the secretaries and clerks in some cases are more or less needy relatives or political liabilities of the statesmen, who might otherwise require whole or partial support out of the members' own pay of $10,000 a year, plus mileage and perquisites. It is much less burdensome to support a wife, a no-good cousin or an indigent brother-in-law afflicted with chronic fatigue, on government pay, as a secretary or clerk, than to meet the loved one's need direct, out of the $10,000 a year plus mileage and perquisites.

The statesmen get an allowance of 20 cents a mile for their travel, but it is earnestly suggested that no moral of civil delinquent among the tax-paying class charge that much in computing his costs of calling on the customers. The internal revenue department would defy him to cite any railroad, plane or omnibus line in the country which charges 20 cents a mile for travel, and might indict him for attempting to rob the deserving poor.

Members Don't Have to Prove Cost of Travel

The internal revenue also would look extremely askance at any return which named the wife, no-good cousin or indigent brother-in-law of the tax-payer as his secretary or clerk, and require him to show cause. Members of congress, however, are not required to prove that their travel costs 20 cents a mile, and there are some who contend that a statesman, driving his own flivver, sleeping in four-bit flops and subsisting on hot dogs along the road, can travel for as little as a nickel a mile, including tips.

As for the employment of wives, no-good cousins and indigent brothers-in-law as secretaries and clerks, custom and the moral and civil conscience of the statesmen, long ago provided the color of legality. So the issue is closed.

All the congressmen and their office employes, including relatives, as well as their political liabilities holding government jobs, are exempt from the income taxes of their respective states. However, Mr. Dies, a sterling statesman from Texas, who took part in the successful resistance to the outrage, issued a patriotic statement for the record that he would gladly lay down his state income tax if he were not unfortunately forbidden to do so by several rulings of the federal supreme court.

No State Income Tax Collected in Texas

Mr. Dies' heart bled openly in anguish over his constitutional incapacity to share the income tax burden of his home state of Texas, which has no state income tax anyway. Nevertheless, on principle, he declared he was not willing to submit to a local income tax to save from bankruptcy the District of Columbia, in which he spends much of his time enjoying the benefits of the police, the fire department and the street-cleaning services.

It will be seen, however, that patriot Dies was morally and ethically pure, and in no degree unfit to sit in judgment on tax-dodgers who evade their taxes.

Another patriot who resented the proposed outrage was Congressman O'Connor, of New York, lion-hearted desperado who once—in the absence of the Rev. Father Charlie (Cash - and - Carry) Coughlin—threatened to kick him all the way up Pennsylvania avenue, from the capitol to the White House, but later explained that he did not mean that literally.

Pays No Tax But is Eligible for Pension

Congressman O'Connor pays no salary income tax to New York state, being debarred from this spiritual joy of citizenship by the same deplorable aberrations of the supreme court that exempt all other federal employes from the income taxes of 32 states.

But Mr. O'Connor is eligible for a New York state pension on account of his federal service under a law which was enacted very quietly in Albany several years ago, and so are his secretaries and his congressional clerks.

O'Connor's refusal to pay income tax toward the maintenance of Washington, D. C., where he resides much of the time, was based on contempt for the selfish spirit of the Washington people. He called them leeches, but owing to the regrettable limitations on debate in the house of representatives did not explain the difference between a leech and a patriot who pays no state income tax on his salary, but nevertheless enjoys the right to a state pension for federal service in a state where he pays no income tax.

With this blast, the statesmen of the house of representatives sounded the moral keynote of the inquiry into the iniquitous evasion and avoidance of income taxes.

W. C. Fields Plans To Appeal $12,000 Award to Physician

Hollywood—(AP)— W. C. Fields, the man with the big red nose, observed today that he "struck out this time," but prepared an appeal from the judgment awarded Dr. Jesse Citron who sued him for $12,000 on an unpaid medical bill.

"But next time I'll hit a home run," the movie comedian said. "You get the idea—we're going to appeal."

Superior Judge O. K. Morton ruled in favor of Dr. Jesse Citron at Riverside, Calif., yesterday. The physician testified he treated Fields for 25 days, during June and July, 1936, and considered his fee "only fair."

Fields had cross-complained, charging the doctor's methods retarded his convalescence. He asked $25,000 damages.

Building Permits

Two building permits were issued yesterday by the building inspection department. The permits were granted to Mrs. Carrie McCarter, 409 N. Division street, porch, $100; Mrs. Fred Luedtke, 1108 N. Lawe street, garage, $100.

Several Methods Found Effective In Gully Control

Systems Vary With Climate, Soil, Cropping Procedures

Control of soil losses resulting from the development of gullies varies with climate, soils and cropping methods, a department of agriculture report to the office of R C. Swanson, county agent, states.

Farmers keep in mind economy, effectiveness and permanence when they build soil-saving check dams, earth fills or diversion ditches to control gullies, T. B. Chambers of the soil conservation service stated in the report.

Check dams of straw, poles and logs, woven wire, and loose rock serve their purpose well, although they do not last as well as dams of well-laid rock, masonry, or concrete and earth.

Gullies waste millions of tons of valuable soil every year. SCS men on more than 140 demonstration areas are showing farmers how gullies can be prevented and checked.

Grass Effective

In practically all sections of the country gully sides may be planted to grass, shrubbery, or trees. Once established, the vegetation slows the flow of "little waters" after rains and holds the soil. Choice of grasses, trees, or shrubs for such plantings is a question which may be referred to county agents or SCS specialists on demonstration areas.

When gullies drain a fair-sized watershed, run-off can be retarded by the right crops and contour farming. Terraces or diversion ditches take care of excess run-off.

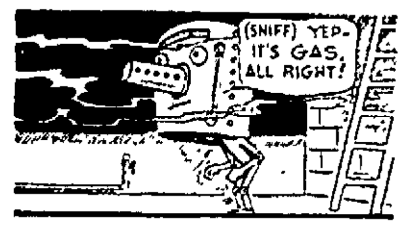
Where the volume of run-off is high, earth, masonry, or concrete dams may be necessary. These dams are most effective where a gully slope is comparatively gentle and where they can be high enough to prevent further cutting back of the gully head. These dams also create reservoirs for livestock water and irrigation.

IT'S ODD
But It's Science

BY HOWARD BLAKESLEE

New York—(AP)—Victor F. Zahodiakin has built a machine to outdo the canaries in protecting man against gas explosions.

The birds do it by fainting. This protects miners. Zahodiakin says his machine can smell where birds won't go, to protect school children. His mechanical smeller is a compressor pump. It sucks air, through small pipes, from suspicious places.



(SNIFF) YEP- IT'S GAS, ALL RIGHT!

If gas is escaping, the smeller brings it in before the concentration becomes explosive. The compressor concentrates it sufficiently to burn. From the compressor it runs to an unlighted jet. Alongside is another jet, lighted. The idea is that the unlighted one will catch fire too if there is any gas. Then the pair, by the heat they generate, can shut off the gas.

DOG-GONE STUBBORN!

Fort Wayne, Ind. —(AP)— A dog under her car delayed a woman shopper for a half hour. The woman dared not drive from her parking place for fear of crushing the dog, which refused to move. The car finally was pushed away The dog immediately ran under another automobile.

Red Cross Highway Units Prepared to Function Soon

The Red Cross reported today in a bulletin to the Outagamie county chapter that as of May 15 there were 1,616 emergency highway first aid stations in operation in 48 states, with 3,376 additional posts prepared to function soon upon completion of training of personnel.

These Red Cross minute men are prepared to give immediate care to injured motorists when an accident occurs in the vicinity, and are particularly drilled in the stopping of arterial bleeding, the splinting of fractures and in treating for shock.

In addition to the first aid stations, 645 Red Cross mobile units are operating on arterial highways. These first aid trucking units were created through agreements between utility and other trucking organizations of the Red Cross. Crews are trained in first aid and adequate first aid kits are carried in each vehicle. The highway police of most states, the bulletin reads, already trained by the Red Cross, augment the mobile units.

Begin Survey to Determine Types And Use of Land

Every Township in Northeastern Counties Will Be Carefully Studied

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—A land inventory of the entire group of Northeastern Wisconsin counties, from Winnebago to Door and Marinette, will be begun late this month, officials of the division of land economic inventory of the executive department announced here Saturday.

Township by township, each county will be surveyed thoroughly by men chosen from local WPA lists, working under the direction of field supervisors of the state department. Harry Cummerford, assistant director under John S. Bordner, in charge, visited Appleton, Green Bay and other Valley cities last week to lay the groundwork for the field operations which will begin in the area within a few weeks.

Work has already been begun in Winnebago county, and will shortly be extended to Outagamie, Waupaca, Calumet, Brown, Shawano, Oconto, Marinette, Kewaunee and Door, headquarters here announced. With each field man covering a township each day, the Valley area is expected to be completed this summer so that maps and other material resulting from the investigation will be published sometime next fall.

The field work in a land economic inventory consists of carefully recording on a map sheet all data that can be readily collected by experienced workers as they cross land at intervals of a quarter or a half of a mile.

The purpose of such investigations is to determine the nature of the land, present production, and if present production is not now adequate to assure the owner an income at least sufficient to maintain himself, the reason for that inadequacy.

While data on the soil and land cover is being gathered, other material also is obtained for use as a measuring stick by which the owner is able to determine what his land will do if devoted to another use, or another crop. For instance, the owner will be able to estimate what he may expect from his land if it is accepted by the state as forest crop land, through which, in Wisconsin, the owner is protected against an increasing tax for a period of 50 years.

Another purpose as explained by Bordner is "due to the fact that a great deal of cheap wood is required to furnish raw material for the hundreds of pulp and paper mills and other wood using industries of the Lake States. The high cost of wood, due to greater distance from the mills, and therefore higher freight rates, has already caused some of these pulp and paper mills and many other industries using wood to cease operations".

Seek Wood Supply

"As these industries close the earnings of the men and women who worked in these mills cease, and these workers must either seek other employment or leave. In either event their ability to purchase the products of farms and industries is reduced. Wood produced near these mills means a cheaper supply of raw material. It means not only work for additional people on the land, but continuous work for those employed in the mills, and an increased purchasing power for farm and factory products. The inventory also shows the recreational use of land and how this value may be improved".

The essential information produced by land inventories includes the total acreage and location of all timber land by type, size and density; the total acreage and location of all swamp land by types; the total acreage and nature in lakes and large streams; the total acreage and location of agricultural land classified as to use; the acreage and location of all urban land; the total mileage of roads, trails, telephone and power lines, fire lanes, and the miles of shore line of the lakes; the number of occupied and unoccupied houses, stores, schools, churches, filling stations, summer homes, springs, fur farms, towers, beaver grist mills, saw mills, gravel pits, dams, etc.; a game county, showing location and number of all game seen by the mappers.

After the field work of the inventory is finished and the final maps are made and all data carefully tabulated, one or more of the following conditions may be shown for the area inventoried, Bordner exxplained:

That the population in a certain locality is inadequate to maintain efficient schools; that the land is not adapted to farm use for which it is now being occupied; that the conversion of the land from its natural use to farm use has proven unprofitable, a condition particularly true of cut-over forest land in recent years; that winter work in the woods has stopped due to an exhaustion of the timber supply, and that large areas of land are reverting to public ownership.

"All this data," said Bordner, "is helpful to governmental agencies whose duty it is to administer local, county and state government, and it will be of value in guiding them to plan intelligently their program of future land use".

The Valley project is the third regional survey undertaken by the state division. Southeastern Wisconsin, the northern tier of counties, and several individual, populous counties have already been surveyed and mapped and the results published.

Certification Bureau Closes 80 Cases in May

Forty-six of sixty-four applications made to the Outagamie county central certification bureau of the state welfare department last month were accepted. Applications were for certification and recertification, for relief, CCC enrolment and rural resettlement aid. The bureau closed 80 cases during the month and carried over 469 cases.

A FOX RIVER VALLEY FARCE

(With apologies only to Jim Farley, expouner of our laws when courts are gagged)

The scene is right here where we live.

The actors are a representative of the Democratic National Committee, the President of a manufacturing plant, and his board of directors.

The property involved consists of 4 books, intrinsic value nearly 6 cents, and a check for a thousand dollars.

Repr. Democratic Nat'l Committee: Mr. Manufacturer, I am sent here by Mr. Farley himself with his greetings. We thought your plant would be happy to assist in a plan we have devised to raise several hundred thousand dollars for the Democratic party. You see corporations cannot give political contributions. That is contrary to the Corrupt Practices Act. But, of course, we can sell merchandise. And we propose to sell you this beautiful book nicely bound in leather for $250.00. We thought you would be happy to take four of them and just give us an even thousand dollars.

Plant President: Well can you do this, is it legal?

Repr. Dem. Nat'l Com.: Why not? We are not asking you for a contribution. We are selling you this book.

Plant President: Well, well, well, laws are so strange. It must be wonderful to be shrewd like the Administration lawyers. I understand, however, and will take it up with my board this afternoon.

Here, of course, the scenes shift. The salesman is absent but the members of the board are all present. The president details the proposition and the following dialogue ensues.

Director No. 1: Why this thing is a fake from soup to nuts, it is as crooked as a garter snake in the grass.

President: Of course, no one would say anything else unless he has a perfect Chinese poker face.

Director No. 2: I am in favor of telling them to go to Halifax. These fellows who are sworn to enforce the law are asking us to break it so long as they can get some swag. It is a racket and a rotten one at that.

And we still condemn and imprison men for stealing bread!

President: Not so fast, gentlemen, we don't want to get put down on the black list. You know they can raise Old Ned with us. There are so many laws now we have five lawyers working night and day to keep us out of trouble. And if we hire another that's another $10,000 a year gone. I think the easiest way out is to slip them the thousand dollars. No one can complain that we broke the law when the government really asks us to do it.

And so of course more in the same vein, men striving to run a respectable business by honorable standards but knowing that unless they wink their eyes at some dishonorable practices they will be hounded to death in the name of high morals by those whose only morals seem to be built on the dollar mark.

Next day the representative of the committee returns, and the childish farce continues:

Repr. Dem. Nat'l Committee: Well, Mr. President, what did your board decide to do?

President: Oh we thought it would be a splendid thing if we could have four of these books. They are such beautiful books and bound so handsomely. I have made out the check to the Democratic National Committee for a thousand dollars and here it is.

Thereupon the representative of the Democratic National Committee delivered the four books, took the thousand dollar check and went his way.

The president of the manufacturing plant took his four books, went out into the boiler room and threw them in the furnace.

NEW DRAMA IS WRITTEN

The story of the automobile, its development and the changes it has wrought in American life, appeals to the imagination. It has created great wealth, lifted men to high estate. Too, the path of its progress is a trail of blasted hopes. Writers are fond of "dramatizing" the industry, an approach best described as carrying coals to Newcastle.

No writer can hope to interpret in terms of the dramatic more than facets of an industry whose whole history is drama.

The automobile has justified itself on the score of usefulness. It has done more. It has freed men's imaginations, has been the magic carpet which has permitted them to answer the call of far places.

This quality of the automobile apparently attaches itself to the motor car's lusty small brother, the auto-trailer.

It is announced in New York City that the last farm on the island of Manhattan shortly is to be transformed into an auto-trailer camp. The despoilation of the last rural retreat on an island of stone and steel is drama in itself. That the despoilation is to be worked because of demands of an infant industry which owes its very existence to the motor car is even greater drama.

IS PROSPERITY ON THE WANE?

Can it be possible that just about as America was to take firm hold upon that elusive thing called prosperity its attention was distracted by political figures and factors and it lost the opportunity?

There are bad signs on the horizon. But there are good signs, too.

One of the worst indications is the report by SEC that last week 140 millions in proposed bond issues were withdrawn by many concerns throughout the country. Obviously such withdrawals for the most part must have been occasioned by enough dissatisfaction with the prevailing order that the companies affected considered it inadvisable to undertake large obligations.

The best sign on the horizon was the sound thrashing given the Farmer-Labor party up in Minneapolis. It shows that the apathy of the people has passed, that they are thoroughly aroused and just as thoroughly disgruntled at the rather pathetic view of our government standing idly and dully around with its mouth open like a gangling fellow blessed with lots of muscle but little reason.

The mere fact that we have a multitude of strikes should not be considered by any reasonable person as a particularly bad sign. We are in a period of change and adjustment and controversy is bound to happen.

There should never be any abandonment in the public mind of the sound principle that labor has a perfect right to strike and should strike when it is clearly satisfied that justice is not coming its way. But the thought advanced by leaders of the Lewis order that the government must never put the slightest restraint upon them, that they may do as they please and order the members of their unions around like so many sheep, when a little inquiry might save the workers as well as others from huge losses, is not only a mistaken policy but so obviously at odds with everything American, with the reason and the intelligence that have always been supported by American groups that it ceases even to be tolerable.

The industrial difficulties that are now hurting America on such a wide scale that disputes in the steel area are even throwing men out of employment right in this city mark the crumbling of authority in high places before the demands of spectacular adventurers who are smart enough to raise $600,000 purses for political purposes.

By every token of fair play Mr. Lewis who is causing all this trouble is merely a Bonapartist, one who will rule or ruin, who will not submit to majority rule in labor ranks, but who says publicly without denial from the White House, that he is practically running the government of the United States. At least his lieutenants claim to be in control, as they put it, of "four departments of the government," and it is clear that they include the executive and the Post Office departments among them.

Opinions Of Others

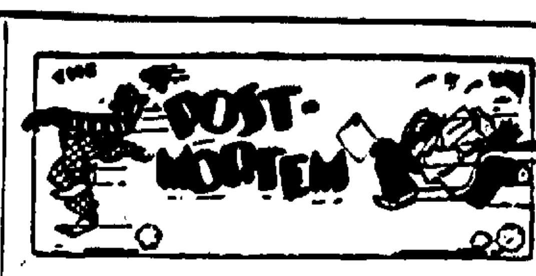
LIQUIDATING RELIEF

The liquidation of the huge relief organization presents the country with as tough a domestic problem as it has faced since the Civil war. Very likely the creation of a vast army of pensioners was inescapable in the circumstances, but there should be no surprise that it resists demobilization. Nothing develops a vested interest as quickly and surely as the receipt of government money, so now that the time has come to signalize recovery by reducing the relief establishment we find ourselves confronted with a situation no less ugly than preposterous. Instead of gratitude for past favors we have sit-down strikes, sometimes leading to riots. And very soon, if Mr. David Lasser's plans mature, we shall have a march of W.P.A. workers on Washington, demanding not merely a continuance of the work relief program but its expansion with higher wages. Meanwhile blocs are forming in congress to defeat retrenchment, with the possibility that we shall see a repetition of the sort of patriotism that marked the bonus raid

Perhaps the Lasser threat should not be taken too seriously, though this gentleman's potentialities as a trouble maker have had impressive demonstration in Wisconsin and at Trenton and Harrisburg. The point is that with the warning of this approach the authorities at Washington have ample opportunity to prepare against it so that without violence or untoward incident they can prevent any such scenes as interrupted the orderly routine of the New Jersey and Pennsylvania legislatures. But beyond that it is high time that Americans, with their eyes open to the full import of the problem before them, made up their minds to restore their country to its normal status of solvency and common sense. This does not mean any sudden and cruel reversal of the policy of relief but rather an inexorable pressure which summarily disposes of the Lassers and their like—New York Herald-Tribune.

Under President Lazaro Cardenas' health program 11,925,077 Mexicans—two-thirds of the country's population—have been vaccinated against smallpox in the last three years.

The annual per capita consumption of wine in the United States increased from less than a quart in 1934 to nearly a half gallon in 1936.



EVEN AS YOU AND I

Slim legs encased in frail gossamer hose,
Fingernails lacquered red, coral or rose;
Gay little trappings young charms to enhance,
Then off for a joy-ride, a party, a dance.
Her chariot, a car of vintage quite old;
Her escort, a stripling half-gallant, half-bold.
A night surely fashioned for hearts that are young,
With moon-light and star-shine and songs to be sung.

She waves a goodbye and is off and away—
(Please, God, keep her always as glad as today!)
Then you do as mothers the world over do,
You wait and you worry the long hours through;
You wait and you worry, 'til out of the night
Right in at your window flash twin stabs of light;
There's a treble voice lilting, a male rumble deep—
Thank God she is home again—now for some sleep!

The rising generation needs, I sometimes suspect, a good walloping now and then. Particularly the bicycling generation, which not only forgets that a bicycle is no protection at all in the event of a collision with a car, but which also deeply resents any interference with its use of the streets as a performing arena.

The increased use of bicycles is all very well, but if the parents who provide 'em don't exercise a little discipline, the police will either have to step in or the city will have to provide elevated streets to separate the traffic.

And even if there were elevated streets, the cyclers would still cavort in the ones intended for automobiles.

And dish out sassy-talk to the motorists.

Comes word from Washington that Mr. Big is about to propose a new means of diffusing the national wealth. Oboy, oboy, oboy. Frank is slipping. This is an old Huey Long smoke screen that Frank has used now and again, and it made pretty good campaign material at one time. But to fish this one out of the closet, and wave it around at a time when the country is buzzing with enough problems to keep any president busy without indulging in pipe dreams, is downright silly.

It is somewhat akin to burning the income tax side-steppers after conveniently forgetting to press tax evasion indictments against the Long machine in Louisiana.

No wonder Vice-President Garner is going home for a six weeks vacation right when he might be needed most in the senate.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

NOW TIME HAS BLESSED ME

After we parted
In sorrow and tears,
And I, broken-hearted,
Faced long empty years,
There were in my longing
Great rifts to be filled,
Where thoughts of you thronging
Could scarcely be stilled.

Now Time has blessed me
With meadows of green.
Scars that oppressed me
No longer are seen.
The good thoughts you planted,
Your loving caress,
Are blossoms transplanted
For my happiness.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

MUSCLES, ARTERIES AND NERVES

Examination of the clinical records of 300 or more men aged, on the average, 52 years, in each of the following occupations or callings, viz., farmers, laborers, clergymen, lawyers, bankers, physicians (in all more than 1800 men) showed that 33 of the doctors, 16 of the bankers, 14 of the lawyers, 14 of the clergymen, 8 of the laborers and 8 of the farmers had coronary sclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, involving the coronary vessels which supply the heart muscle itself. This degeneration is likely to manifest itself in angina pectoris or in coronary thrombosis.

The physician who reported this study suggested that what is a crisis for the banker or business man is more or less routine for the physician. By that he implied that the responsibilities and anxieties of the physician attending obstetric cases, broken legs, heart disease cases, infantile paralysis, scarlet fever, diphtheria, appendicitis, pneumonia, domestic tragedies and other critical conditions, are as intense as that of the banker when there is a run on his bank or the business man when a strike impends. Besides, the investigator maintains, the physician "has used up a great deal of nervous energy, by the time he has finished school," for his schooling is long and intensive compared with that of the average banker or business man.

I hope this will put some of you bankers and business men in your place. You generally contrive to be in conference when a mere doctor comes hat in hand to apply for a little extension of credit, yet, as the statistics show, after all you're just a lot of lowbrows.

The unsophisticated layman may take that idea of used up nervous energy seriously. Probably a good many dumb doctors, especially surgeons and brass specialists, think it is a pretty sound notion too. I wonder what they'd think if one were to sound off in similar fashion about exhaustion of stomach energy, liver energy, lung energy or skin energy? Imposing conversation aside and speaking in terms of physiology, a person can use up skin energy or liver energy as readily as he can use up nervous energy. There is no ground for the notion that energy, strength, vigor or power is produced by or used by the nerves or the brain. Physiology recognizes no such thing as nervous energy. There is no such state as nervous exhaustion, apart from ordinary exhaustion. The only energy, power, strength or vigor concerned in human metabolism, so far as physiologists have determined, is that liberated by the oxidation or combustion of food-fuel to produce heat or muscular work.

The trouble with the doctor who has just finished his medical training and with many doctors who have attained success in practice is not that they have used up too much energy but that they have failed to use up the energy liberated by emotions. In short they have neglected to get a sufficient daily ration of muscular work, play or exercise to blow off steam, and the cardiovascular system not the nervous system, breaks down under the abuse.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Preparing for Maternity

Would it be injurious for a prospective mother to get a permanent wave? Is it advisable for her to wear a maternity corset? (Mrs. F.S.)

Answer—As a rule, no. Both questions should be answered for her by her physician, whom she should engage as soon as she believes she is to become a mother and visit at regular intervals for advice.

Peppers

Why don't you give the lowly pepper a break as a rich source of vitamin C? (J.C.)

Answer—Green peppers, dadbust 'em, are perhaps the richest known source of vitamin C, ounce for ounce. But I don't like peppers. I don't like mashed potatoes or grapefruit either, and it is no use trying to make me say nice things about 'em.

Tooth Decay in Children

Please tell me what causes my children's teeth to decay so fast. They get plenty of good food and we try to make them brush their teeth regularly, yet . . . (Mrs. O.W.S.)

Answer—They do not get sufficient direct sunshine on naked skin. They do not get sufficient calcium and phosphorous (of which milk and cheese are the best sources.) They need a daily ration of vitamin D to supplement their diet. Pleasantest and most economical vitamin D would be a half dozen irradiated yeast tablets daily, chewed along with any food or drink. British Medical Research Council found that control of tooth decay in children requires several times as much vitamin D as the amount considered necessary to prevent rickets.

Your Birthday

"GEMINI"

If June 18 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m. from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

Imaginary grievances will be the most pernicious disturbing power in human affairs this day, so think twice and clearly before indulging in them. Ingratitude may turn out to be a disturbing factor also. Be sure then to express appreciation for any favor or kindness that might be accorded to you. Those born on this date, who are engaged in commercial affairs, should find this a very auspicious day, particularly if they are engaged in negotiations of any kind. This may be a day conducive to many laughable incidents without apparent reason. Be prepared to take jokes and tomfoolery good-naturedly. Avoid making quick, twisting movements, or taking violent exercises this day, for accidents might originate from either. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are in love, should avoid doing things in a hurry-skurry fashion if they wish to escape a peevish feeling that is apt to be most annoying

If a woman and June 18 is your birthday, you probably love to be on the go. Athletic sports should have a strong appeal for you, especially if you have the opportunity of taking an active part in them. You ought to be very graceful on the dance floor, or on skates. In your social contacts you should be able to display a great deal of cleverness and tact in handling people. You may have an excessive amount of pride. Be careful it does not prove to be your stumbling block. If engaged in business your one weakness is apt to be a readiness to take things for granted, whereas definite agreements or written contracts might save you from a world of trouble. You may make a huge success as: a restaurant, beauty parlor or specialty shop manager, author, actress or saleslady. You are apt to be very lucky in your selection of a husband.

The child born on June 18, is generally mentally alert and physically spry. Parents will have to be careful in its teens, that its popularity does not interfere with its school work.

If a man and June 18 is your natal day, you ought to be an excellent talker, a fine salesman and a lover of nature. As a botanist, geologist, engineer, actor, lawyer, doctor or writer your achievements, in all likelihood, will be brilliant.

Successful People Born on June 18:

James E. Cabot, author.
Samuel Longfellow, clergyman and author.
Edward S. Morse, Zoologist.
Lester F. Ward, botanist and geologist.
John R. Thomas, architect.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Ever since that night seven years ago when I sat in a hotel in the midwest and ate apples with Otis Skinner I have wanted to talk with his daughter.

But it was not until she came home on the Britannic the other day that I finally met this dark-haired star of the American stage. It was the conclusion of her fourth and most successful London engagement, and now she is home to reminisce on the coronation and to do a lot of work—a disturbingly lot of work—getting ready for "Edna His Wife," which she is dramatizing for her own production this winter.

"How was London?" I asked, with fine originality. . . . "Great," she said, "but I ate too much in London. . . . Now if I can waste away some four or five pounds. . . ."

This was really a laugh. . . . No one has ever seen this actress overweight and no one ever will. . . . One of the things that created a lot of interest among Haymarketers as well as visitors was the way the queen mother gets about. Miss Skinner ran into her at an art gallery herself, and an acquaintance happened to look up and found herself standing next to her in one of London's busy department stores, purchasing such personal bric-a-brac as handkerchiefs, linen and other accessories.

But about Miss Skinner herself. . . . She is really the only star who writes and gives whole productions by herself. . . . As she always appears alone in them, casting is never one of her problems. . . . It is an odd withal a fine achievement that she is able to carry through play-length monologs, which last an evening, and have people clamoring to see her.

There was "The Empress Eugenie," which she liked best of all her productions, yet it was the least popular of all. There was "The Wives of Henry VIII," which she did at Noel Castle, which the old king used to own. . . . When she brought "Loves of Charles II" to London she was vastly concerned about its reception there—but they adored it.

You see, most of her things have been historical, so she is looking forward with a lot of zest to this new dramatization of Margaret Ayer Barnes' novel, because it is typically American. More than that, it is middle western, with Chicago the locale. It concerns a man who placed success above all things, and his wife, who tried so hard to keep up to him and just couldn't make it. She was the type who should have remained in a little white house in the suburbs and had children. Cornelia Otis Skinner believes she is going to have a lot of fun doing this one.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The state department has been infected to a degree with "get rid of the old fellows" fever and has sent several stale diplomats to the showers.

Mostly the ousted ones are tired souls in the protected career service so they won't be on the relief rolls. They are B, C and D grade diplomats who forgot to be active diplomats and began dreaming too early about the little white cottage.

Double Play

More apparent is the reorganization within the state department itself. This has been held up for nearly a year because of a difficult personal problem confronting Secretary of State Hull. When Hull became secretary he brought R. Walton Moore of Virginia with him as close confidant and advisor. Moore and Hull had served many years in the house together. Moore became an assistant secretary.

Bright Young and Polished William Phillips was named under-secretary, second in command to Hull. When he left to become ambassador to Italy, Hull was in a dither. He needed a young executive to replace Phillips but disliked offending Moore.

Congress obligingly accommodated by creating the office of counselor a post not filled since Lansing held it. Moore became counselor. Bright Young and Polished Assistant Secretary Summer Welles became under-secretary, and both had their salaries lifted from $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

Elbow Man

Now all administrative business will be routed through Welles. He will be the whole diplomatic show under Hull, where before he was king-pin only for Latin America.

Moore, a very heady gentleman despite or because of his 70-odd years, will stand at Hull's elbow on policy matters, such as operation of the neutrality act, arms embargo. Equally important, he will be contact man with congress.

The Mexican and Latin American divisions have been merged into one under Laurence Duggan, who is so young you expect him to pep out with a photograph of his latest college sweetie, but he really has been around the circuit.

Edward L. Reed, formerly head of the Mexican division, goes to the important job of counselor to the embassy in Italy.

Fastest play of the week was in the oriental sector. Eugene Dooman, expert on Japan in the state department, goes to Tokyo as counselor of embassy. Japanese officials at the London naval conference said: "He speaks better Japanese than we do."

E. L. Neville, counselor at Tokyo, becomes minister to Siam at a $1,000 raise in pay to $10,000. James Marion Baker, minister to Siam—oh, well, he was only a political appointee from South Carolina. His term is up. So he goes out while the career service moves in.

Here and There Around World

ANTI-SEMITES UNITE

Vienna —(P)— With the formation of the Pan-Aryan Union, Austrian Hitlerites are campaigning for nazification on a new front. The anti-semitic organization was established in February, but its existence was not known generally until the Neuigkeits Weltblatt, which has close connections with the chancellory, reported it months later. Its aim is "the advancement of national, international and interracial co-operation among aryan and similar peoples for the protection and advancement of their intellectual, cultural and economic interests."

'BEWITCHING' GOWNS

Peiping, China — (P) — Because their dresses were "so bewitching as to make them unseemly to look at," two waitresses were arrested in Peiping.

At the same time, a high school issued an order forbidding the students to curl their hair. Those who have already had permanents must register and if they are found indulging in the practice again, they will be punished.

FAST TORPEDO BOATS

Shanghai — (P) — German-built speedboats equipped with two torpedo tubes and capable of a speed of 45 miles an hour are the latest acquisitions of the Chinese government. Two of the craft have been delivered here and it is understood eight more are to follow.

It is reported that the deadly craft are to be stationed in the Yangtze river at Chinkiang, not far from the Pacific Ocean. A dozen similar craft, built in Britain, are reputed to have arrived up the river.

HAILS QUADS

Munich, Germany —(P)— There wasn't much fuss made over Frau Emma Ottmann and her quadruplets when she gave birth to three girls and one boy in 1912. But when they celebrated their 25th birthday recently there were congratulations all around, and even a four-line item in a Munich newspaper.

Although the father of the quads died when they were 12, his widow managed to bring them up single-handed and prepare them for earning a living. All have jobs now.

Farmers of Afton, Tex., killed 8,000 crows with one charge of high explosive planted in the birds' roost.

President Wants Congress to Vote On Court Proposal

Lawrence Sees Growing Insurgency Against Roosevelt Policies

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—It is difficult to describe in words the growing insurgency in the congress of the United States against the policies of President Roosevelt. The straw, so to speak, which has broken the camel's back is the direct partisanship which the president has manifested for several weeks past in behalf of the C. I. O.

Lawrence

Members of congress, particularly from the south who have gone along enthusiastically with the New Deal have become disturbed over the tendencies and implications of Mr. Roosevelt's proposals. Vice President Garner has gone home, discouraged because he cannot persuade Mr. Roosevelt of the error of his ways.

The president is aware of the insurgency, but unquestionably understimates its character and scope. For several days, word has been coming officially from the White House that the president would insist on a vote on the supreme court bill at this session. After the devastating report filed by the 10 members of the senate judiciary committee, demolishing the president's argument for enlargement of the supreme court, it might have been thought that Mr. Roosevelt would be content to drop the issue.

But Mr. Roosevelt's insistence on a vote, even though he knows it may go against him, is but the beginning of a challenge to the courageous men in the senate which may awaken the whole nation to disregard party lines and support those individuals, irrespective of party, who have placed principle above ambition.

Wants Decision

The reason why Mr. Roosevelt wants a vote on the court bill is that he wants to put the members of his own party "on the spot." He is represented as believing that, after the vote on the court bill, congress might well adjourn, and then the president would undertake to explain to the nation and to the constituents of the seators in their particular states just why his program of reform, as he sees it, has been supposedly blocked by a failure to reorganize the judiciary.

Most members of congress do not want a record vote. They do not see any sense in having any vote because they believe the debate has been, in effect, disposed of by the report of the senate committee.

The President, on the other hand, is said to be intent on punishing politically those who disagree with him and wants to carry the issue to the country. His argument for consenting to an adjournment of congress at this time would be that there was no use trying to pass any legislation until the supreme court was infused with "new blood." Lately, the idea of "young" blood has been superseded by the use of the phrase "new blood."

Question of Solidarity

Certainly, so far as the president is concerned, the question raised by the controversy over the plan to enlarge the supreme court is a fundamental one of party solidarity. If the president believes the time has come to split the Democratic party and compel a realignment of groups, then the supreme court controversy affords the best fighting ground that has been available for the purpose in many years.

The president's opponents inside and outside congress would welcome a battle on the question of "packing" the supreme court. The senate committee report furnishes the platform on which Republicans as well as Democrats are willing to stand. It is one of the greatest state papers in all the history of the American republic. The ten men who signed it, along with the others in the senate who oppose the bill, will stand out in future history as ranking along with the courageous men who dared to declare America's independence of a British king, risking their lives and their fortunes and their sacred honor for what they deemed to be a principle of human freedom and democracy.

Many Independent

There are some interesting angles to the present situation which can hardly be overlooked if the president carries the battle to the country. Large groups which have benefitted from the administration's spending or from its partisanship will stay lined up with the administration, but there are large independent groups which will not. It is doubtful whether the so-called masses have paid much attention anyway to the supreme court controversy because it is, after all, an abstract question to many persons. But the thinking people have concerned themselves about it, and once they are united, they can swing the balance of power.

If, for example, only 7,000,000 out of the 27,000,000 who supported Mr. Roosevelt in November, 1936, were to switch to the side of the 17,000,000 who opposed Mr. Roosevelt at the polls, there would be a numerical majority on the side of the opponents of the president's program to break down judicial independence.

Change in Making

This does not actually require a change of 7,000,000 at all, but an actual change of a minimum of 3,500,000 persons who voted for Roosevelt last autumn. Judging by the letters received on capitol hill, such a change has been slowly but surely in the making. Democratic senators who supported Mr. Roosevelt last autumn have told me that never in their experience in congress has there been such a mail received as that which set forth the citizens' opposition to the president's tampering with the judicial system of the country. The letters were not propaganda, as hardly any two seemed alike, but were written from different points of view and with mature deliberation. Undoubtedly, the thinking people of America wrote to congress. That's the group which swayed half the Democratic members of the senate from the president's side. There probably was very little, if any, change in the so-called mass groups which vote by emotion or through the control of political machines or through labor organization influence. It was a victory for reason and persuasiveness as well as intelligence.

The fact that these Democrats risked the possible punishments of the New Deal and the reprisals of an administration which can support rival candidates against them for renomination next year is a sign that, at last, in the American congress, there have arisen men of the same patriotic zeal and courage as those men who founded the republic more than 150 years ago. If Mr. Roosevelt wants to carry the issue to the country, the men who are opposed to him on this question are ready for the battle.

Lighter Side of Mexico Features Author's Talk Before Appleton Women

BY VIOLA HELLERMAN

MEXICAN political and religious problems were pleasantly forgotten for something in a lighter vein when Mrs. Anita Willets Burnham, Winnetka, Ill., told more than 200 women at Riverview Country club Wednesday afternoon about her personal experiences in that country. The occasion was the large tea given by Mrs. Mark Catlin, Mrs. David Gallaher and Mrs. Ralph Landis, with Mrs. Burnham as guest speaker.

Dressed in a colorful Mexican costume with a green and red skirt and a richly embroidered blouse, as well as two capes and a black silk coat, Mrs. Burnham made her appearance pushing a tiny wheelbarrow on which she had her suitcase.

"It saves tips," she explained.

Started With $10

The author of the travel book, "Round the World on a Penny," Mrs. Burnham is a genius at knowing how to get places with a slim pocketbook. The fact that she and her party of five left Mexico City with only $10 between them seemed to perturb them not at all, if her rollicking description of their predicament yesterday was any indication. Money, she declared, is mental.

For those people who are always thinking about taking a long trip but never really get to do it, Mrs. Burnham offered this advice:

"Talk about your ambitions. Tell everyone you know, and then your friends will hold you to it. I was planning to go to Mexico and therefore put down 'Fourth of July in Old Mexico' as one of my lecture topics. Then I began to get engagements for that lecture, and I had never been in old Mexico. So I had to go."

She made the trip with her young daughter, Ann, a sculptor and his artist wife from Boston and a Northwestern university student she called Dan, who was a story in himself. Dan, a stranger, came to Mrs. Burnham's home a day or two before they were to start to Mexico to ask her for some tips on getting around the world on a penny. Mrs. Burnham was too busy with some guests to devote any time to an interview with him, so she asked him to stay for lunch and pick up such advice as she could throw to him during the table conversation. Dan stayed on for tea, too, still gathering occasional traveling tips from his hostess, and she finally decided to take him along to Mexico. The Burnhams, it seems, do things spontaneously like that. Dan proved invaluable on the trip.

Disregarding the statistical Mexico which can be found in geographies and encyclopedias, Mrs. Burnham began her account of that country with the three swollen streams they had to ford when they entered it and the two rattlesnakes Dan killed. They were told later that rattlesnake meat was a delicacy and that they missed a treat by not taking it along.

Mexico Doesn't Hurry

Mexico doesn't believe in hurrying, Mrs. Burnham said. The trains are always late. They stop at every village, while the conductors and engineers apparently take a few moments off to visit with their relatives. Mrs. Burnham and her party did, however, finally arrive in Mexico City. One and one-half miles above sea level, it is a city of invigorating climate, she said, coolish in the morning, warmish at noon and coolish again in the evening. It reminded her of Paris, with its old and beautiful cathedral, its markets and its palaces. And as for modern buildings, Mexico City is beating America to it, she said.

Prices are low in Mexico, Mrs. Burnham went on. For one peso, the equivalent of about 28 cents, they saw two operas, and for six pesos, about $1.80 in our money, they were able to get a night's sleeping quarters and private bath for four persons.

She told also entertainingly of their visit to the home of Diego Rivera, the Mexican painter, and of how they missed the train when they left Mexico City and were forced to take up a collection to hire a taxi to catch the train, because Dan, who had their only money, had caught it.

Mrs. Burnham is not only an author and lecturer but also an artist, and the walls of the country club were covered with the sketches and paintings she had done in her travels.

Last night Dr. and Mrs. David M. Gallaher, 821 E. Washington street, entertained at dinner at their home for Mrs. Burnham, the Mark Catlins and Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Landis. During the evening Mrs. Burnham's friends dropped in informally to greet her. She has been here before and has a large circle of acquaintances.

Parties

Several anniversaries occurring at the same time were the impetus for a party given by Mrs. Ray Agen, 1426 N. Alvin street, for 20 guests last night at her home. Mrs. Agen was observing her birthday anniversary, she and her husband celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary, as did her brother, George Meyer and his wife, 1515 N. Harriman street, and the occasion was also the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Agen's brother, Albert Meyer, route 1, Menasha.

Games provided entertainment, prizes going to Mrs. Jack Rislow, Ray Agen, Howard Meyer, Miss Annabel Dorman and Mrs. Albert Meyer. Refreshments were served at tables decorated with candles in a blue and white scheme, and the centerpiece was a bouquet given to Mrs. Agen for her anniversary.

Girl Scouts Have Day's Camp at Park

FIFTY-five Girl Scouts enjoyed the first day camp of the season Wednesday at Pierce park which was featured by games, races and contests, a luncheon cooked over open fires and a campfire program.

The day's program began at 10 o'clock when the Girl Scouts gathered in a group for singing. Following the general opening session patrols were organized and five patrol leaders were chosen. The groups were formed through a game and patrol meetings were held Leaders for the day were Mary Koehne, Betty Van Gorp, Grace Christianson, June Junge, and Millicent Saecker.

A general game period was held for all the girls following the patrol meetings, games including relay races, baseball, and other active contests. Fire-building was practiced by some of the girls in preparation for passing requirements for the second class badge. The girls prepared their lunches over the fires and a rest hour followed the noon meal, at which time the girls told continuous stories, played charades and entertained with quiet activities.

The girls chose between dramatics and archery for the afternoon activities, which were followed by a campfire program. The program included a discussion of the activities to be carried on during the day camp season, a song period and a program put on by the dramatics group. Their program included scenes from the book "Heidi," and short scenes from other famous novels. The day camp session ended with a goodnight circle.

Miss Dorothy Calnin, Girl Scout director, was in charge of the day camp program, assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Howley, Miss Miriam Moser, Miss Mary Keller and Miss Grace Watson.

The next day camp will be held on Monday, July 19, following the three weeks' camping session at Camp Onaway.

Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond Married As Hollywood Thrills

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—(AP)—Hollywood's "perfect pair," Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond, began their married life at some secret spot today, after a wedding that shattered every movie colony record for excitement, extravagance and mob scenes.

They will have a Honolulu honeymoon, sailing June 26.

More than 15,000 persons massed around the fashionable Wilshire Methodist Episcopal church last night when the ceremony took place. Three hours before the appointed time, their automobiles choked every street for a mile around.

By 9 o'clock, the throng, cursing, sweating and struggling with 100 policemen, had blocked the boulevard so badly that it took a herculean effort to bring a thin stream of cars through.

The jam delayed the bridesmaids 40 minutes.

Famous Stars Present

Inside the church, approximately 1,000 top-ranking stars and celebrated film figures saw the service.

There were thousands of roses Six candelabra, each bearing seven slender tapers, burned in the chancel. The middle aisle, bounded by pink silk ribbon along the whole length, also was lined with seven candles on a side.

White-gloved ushers — Harold Lloyd, John Mack Brown, Allan Jones, Basil Rathbone, Warren Rock and Richard Hargreaves—escorted feminine guests to their places. Jones' shoes squeaked.

Finally, Nelson Eddy began to sinig "I Love You Truly" as the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna MacDonald, took her place. Then the familiar "Here Comes the Bride," the Lohengrin Wedding March, rang out.

The ushers, two by two, in conventional halting steps, started down the aisle. Rathbone had difficulty keeping step. They were followed by the bridesmaids—Ginger Rogers, Fay Wray, Mrs. Richard Hargreaves, Mrs. Warren Rock and Mrs. John Mack Brown. Ginger's burnished gold-red hair flickered in the dim candle-light.

Then came the bride, 30, a year older than the bridegroom.

She wore flesh pink mousseline, with a redingote, long, full sleeves, a high neck and lace collar, and a tiny bouquet of flowers. The skirt was full. Her veil was pink tulle. She wore a shell-shaped lace cap; carried a gold-embroidered pink satin prayer book.

Raymond, his corn-silk hair shining, smiled as she came near. He held out his arm. She gripped it firmly.

It was a single-ring service. The Rev. Willsie Martin officiated. As he intoned the Lord's Prayer, near the end, a dull roar from the thousands outside echoed in the church. The flash of photographers' bulbs flared against the stained glass windows.

The word "obey" was omitted from the service.

Council Grants Veterans Permit For Carnival

Votes Unanimously Despite Protests of Several Groups

Over the objections of several organizations, the common council last night voted unanimously to grant permission to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Harvey Pierre post, to sponsor a carnival at the circus grounds on Badger avenue from July 19 to 24.

Objections were voiced by representatives of the Appleton Ministerial association and the Motion Picture Operators' union. A letter of protest also was filed with the city by Kenneth Corbett, secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce. The objections were that the majority of carnivals provided poor entertainment of a low form, had a degrading effect on morals; and cut receipts of permanently established local theaters. It was brought out that a license for a carnival, even of high grade type, would be a loop-hole for others to enter the city.

Show Investigated

Speaking for the Veterans of Foreign Wars were Commander Joseph Witmer and Armin Scheurle. Witmer said the Hennies Bros. show would be brought to the city and that it had been investigated and had only acts and shows that would offend no one. The veteran's organization seeking the license was composed of residents of good standing who could not afford to have their reputations marred through bringing in a carnival with objectional features, he said.

Scheurle said a committee last week inspected the carnival at Janesville and that it was found to be of "high grade." If permitted to show in the city it would be under proper supervision and all laws would be obeyed, he said.

The aldermen were generally agreed that it would be better to have the show in the city under police supervision than just beyond the city limits where there would be no control over it. Several aldermen said the city would derive a large amount of business through the show.

One Permit a Year

A proposal to permit only one carnival, sponsored by a local organization, to show in the city each year was referred to the ordinance committee.

Recommendation of the street and bridge committee to raise wages of street department employes 5 cents an hour and $5 per month for those on a salary basis, was approved. Proposed widening of Washington street from Oneida to Superior street was laid over until the next meeting.

Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, Mrs George Weltengel and William J. Roemer were reappointed to the library board by the mayor and the appointments approved by the council.

Question City Order

Two letters from boathouse owners at Lutz park questioning the city's recent order that the buildings be removed were referred to the Lutz park committee and the city attorney. The boathouse owners contend that they are not on city property as the buildings are built over the water. The council ordered all boathouses removed from city property at the park in preparation for developing a bathing beach there. Condemnation proceedings were ordered started on a stretch of land between S. Pierce avenue and Cedar street to provide an additional exit from the park.

Increased police patrolling on Wisconsin avenue as a means of slowing down traffic on the street, recommended by the traffic committee, was ordered. The committee met with a delegation of residents along the street yesterday after a serious accident on the street Monday afternoon and the recommendation followed.

No Added Cost

Alderman Thompson said the street needed close checking, at least for a time, and that additional police patrol on the street until the condition improves could be provided at no extra cost.

That Appleton is still in its "horse and buggy" days in regards to its police department was the statement of Alderman Steinhauer. He said that Neenah, about half the size of Appleton, has 14 police officers while Appleton has but 28. More police are needed in the local department if the city is to cope with present traffic conditions, he declared.

Although the buildings and grounds committee had recommended rejection of bids for the city owned house at 1321 W. Winnebago street, the council by a 9 and 2 vote decided to sell it for the highest bid of $1,500. Alderman Grignon and Kubitz were opposed. It was brought out that an offer of $1,800 had been made after the bids were opened. Bill boards on W. Prospect avenue were ordered removed in 15 days.

Will Install Bubler

Recommendations of the recreational committee that a bubbler be installed at the Roosevelt playgrounds and two dozen street decoration flags be purchased were approved.

Relief workers on special city projects will receive $10 per month with the remainder of their wages in supplies, it was decided upon recommendation of the relief committee.

Oiling on Winnebago street from Mason street to Badger avenue and on S. Weimer street was ordered. A request for $250 for playground equipment to be used under the WPA recreational program was referred to the recreational committee.

Readvertise for Bids

Proposed grading on Calumet street, oiling on N. Locust street and Third street, and repair of Spencer street were referred to the street and bridge committee. The city will readvertise for bids on a motorcycle for the police department.

A letter of thanks for his aid in getting the city's case on land grant allowance from the government on the sewage plant site reopened will be sent by the council to Congressman Schneider. PWA recently reversed its decision to allow the city an additional $12,435 of the site's cost as eligible for government aid.

Approve Loan

The council ordered $10,000 transferred from the contingent to the relief fund to meet relief expenses. The budget placed $40,000 into the relief fund but cost of relief will be about $70,000 for the year. A loan of $4,000 to the vocational school board was authorized.

No parking will be permitted on the east side of S. Appleton street from Lawrence street south in order to relief traffic congestion, the council decided.

Final action on ammendments to the zoning ordinance to make uniform side yards and set back lines on Wisconsin avenue. Alderman Thompson was opposed saying that the street should be in the commercial and light manufacturing rather than the local business district.

Plant Trees, Shrubs To Prevent Erosion

About 250,000 acres of steeply sloping or severely eroded croplands have been retired to trees and shrubs by farmers cooperating with the soil conservation service in its program of erosion control, a report received by R. C. Swanson, county agent, states.

Under proper management, farm woodlands are not the wastelands that many farmers have considered them to be, according to J. F. Preston, forester of the soil conservation service. Proper management means fire prevention, adapted trees, thinning, and protection from grazing animals.

Morgenthau First Witness at Quiz On Tax Avoidance

group of people, some of whom are earning money while others are losing it.

"He divides himself into several people, sometimes incorporated and sometimes not.

(By dividing their incomes among several members of their families or among personal holding corporations, some taxpayers may receive lower-bracket rates, reducing their total tax payments.)

Morgenthau said that in some cases wealthy individuals had set up corporations abroad, transferring income to them and avoiding taxes.

"We intend to give examples of a large number of cases, not all of which would be upheld by the courts but many of which are sufficiently plausible so that they can delay and hinder tax collections."

Hard to Eliminate

"It is the history of tax litigation," Morgenthau said, "that it takes years to finally outlaw a tax avoidance, once it gets a foothold among tax attorneys."

Saying it could not be determined exactly how much tax evasion and avoidance has cost the treasury in revenue, the treasury chief added that "it is a substantial factor which is cumulative in effect, just as the influence of a continued course of sharp practices in bankruptcy cases tends to reduce the total dividends to creditors."

Citing that March income tax collections fell below estimates, Morgenthau said that this brought his preliminary investigation of income tax returns.

"This investigation," he said, "disclosed the very significant fact:

'Collections in certain areas where there is a considerable concentration of wealth and income had not increased by as large a percentage as had the total income tax receipts for the country as a whole.

"In connection with this fact it is particularly important to note that dividends represent a larger percentage of the net income of people with large incomes than they do for people with small incomes."

The treasury knew that corporations sharply increased dividend during 1936, the witness said, adding this indicated that part of the drop in income tax collections under estimates might have been due "to a wider use of various methods of tax evasion and tax avoidance."

70 Register for Cemetery Officer's Convention Here

2-Day Session Will Close Friday Afternoon at Hotel Northern

About 70 members of the Association of the Wisconsin Cemetery Superintendents and Officials have registered for the tenth annual convention which opened this morning at Hotel Northern. More than 100 persons are expected to attend the 2-day meeting which will close Friday afternoon.

The convention officially opened at 1:30 this afternoon at the Riverside cemetery when Mayor John Goodland, Jr., gave the welcoming address. After addresses by Mrs. Ruby Radcliffe, Eagle River, president, and Frank B. Groh, secretary-treasurer, routine business was considered.

Gustav Keller, Appleton, was the principal speaker at this afternoon's session and discussed "Cemeteries." A demonstration of equipment at the Riverside cemetery and a trip to other Appleton cemeteries are scheduled for the latter part of the afternoon. The meeting will adjourn at 5 o'clock and members then will hold an informal banquet at Hotel Northern at 6:30 tonight.

The Friday business session will open at 9 o'clock in the morning and new officers will be elected about an hour later. After the selection of the convention city for 1938, Paul Daggett, St. Paul, Minn., will discuss "The Necessity of Establishing a Perpetual Care Fund for Small Cemeteries." The convention will close Friday afternoon after members hear a talk on "Social Security and Unemployment Insurance."

Jaces Will Select New Officers Today

Members of the board are Harry Hoeffel, Wilmer Stach, George Howden, H. K. Derus, Fred Boughton, E. H. Kirk, C. D. Fox, Horace L. Davis, Jr. and Glenn H. Arthur. George Howden now is president.

Plan Hearing of Case Against Paper Company

A public hearing will be conducted by the Wisconsin Public Service commission at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the court house on a charge that the Patten Paper company has been dumping debris into the Fox river. It is claimed that the debris interferes with proper flow of the river.

WINS JACE MEDAL

Charles Widsteen, 22, above, 513 N. Sampson street, will receive the first Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce medal for risking his life to save that of another person. The medal will be presented by Governor Philip F. LaFollette at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 4, during the Jaces 3-day picnic at Erb park. Mr. Widsteen rescued Miss Anna Weimar, 315 N. Weimar street, when her car plunged through a retaining wall into the canal north of the E. John street bridge April 9. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Frozen Fish Will be Given Relief Clients

City relief clients who received frozen fish last Friday will be eligible to receive a second allotment of the surplus commodity at the central application bureau in the old post office building. Cabbage also will be distributed to local relief clients from 9:30 until 11:30 Friday morning.

100 4-H Members Will Join in Summer Outing

Approximately 100 Outagamie county 4-H club members are expected to participate in the annual county 4-H summer camp at Shawano lake July 8-11, R. C. Swanson, county agent, announced today. The outing last year was held the north shore of Lake Winnebago.

CALL FOR NEW BIDS

The water commission at a regular meeting yesterday decided to readvertise for bids for painting the water department office and the exterior of the water plant. Routine business also was transacted.

James Buchanan returned from Northwestern Military and Naval Academy at Lake Geneva with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Buchanan, Tuesday evening. James won the medal for plebes competitive drill which is awarded by regular army officers. He also ranked among the highest in his class scholastically.

Charles Widsteen To Receive First Jace Hero Medal

Dove Into Canal to Save Life of Miss Anna Weimar on April 9

Charles Widsteen, 22, 513 N. Sampson street, who rescued Miss Anna Weimar, 315 N. Weimar street, when her car plunged through a retaining wall into the canal north of the E. John street bridge April 9, will receive the first medal to be awarded by the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce Heroes Award committee.

Governor Philip F. LaFollette will award the medal at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 4, during the junior chamber of commerce 3-day picnic at Erb park. Mr. Widsteen thus will become the first hero in the state to publicly receive a medal for his meritous deed.

Before selecting the hero, the Jace committee composed of Fred Boughton, Dr. R. C. Joyce and George T. Prim, chief of police, interviewed Miss Weimar, Mr. Widsteen, G. R. Stearns, Phillip Vogt and Roger LaBerge, eye witnesses. All credited Mr. Widsteen with saving Miss Weimar's life.

Describe Rescue

In describing the accident, Miss Weimar said that she had attempted to make a turn from John street onto Newberry street when her car plunged through the railing and into the canal. The canal surface was covered with pulp logs which served as a buoy for a few moments before the car started to sink.

Miss Weimar made an effort to open the doors of the automobile but was unsuccessful. When she opened a window, the inrushing water and logs blocked her attempts at escape. A few moments later, Mr. Widsteen succeeded in swimming to the car and after opening a door, helped Miss Weimar to shore.

Mr. Stearns, an employe of the Interlake Pulp and Paper company which adjoins the canal, said that Widsteen, who also is employed at the plant, jumped through a window when he saw the accident, ran to the side of the building and plunged into the canal to save Miss Weimar's life.

Besides receiving the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce medal, Mr. Widsteen becomes eligible for selection as the state hero who will be chosen by a governor's committee at the close of the year. Other Jace organizations in the state will award heroes in a similar manner in their area.

CHILD IMPROVING

The condition of Betty Mathy, 7, 210 E. Summer street, was reported improved at St. Elizabeth hospital this morning. The child suffered a skull fracture and other injuries in a traffic accident on E. Wisconsin avenue Tuesday afternoon.

Police, Hunting Three Youngsters In Tree House, Meet Heavy Seas

Night as black as the ace of spades, patches of oozing mud to receive plodding feet, wisps of cottonwood "snow" carried on beating rain to cling to faces and clothing, branches of wet brush to snap across faces in the dark, mounting need for mosquito "dope".

All this and more provided a setting for a successful if disagreeable police man hunt, (small men) last night.

It seems that Mrs. Gertrude E. Fentnor, 825 E. John street, knew her son Louis, 12, was going to visit a tree house near Waverly, and granted permission but that Louis' two companions, Charles, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Vincent Thoms, 816 E. South street, and Robert, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Gardner, 8 Brokaw place, had neglected to mention their plans and were definitely A. W. O. L.

When the two who were unaccounted for failed to return home last evening, their parents became alarmed and police aid was asked.

Search Begins

Lieutenant H. W. Kapp and Master Mechanic Albert Deltgen soon learned where the three musketeers probably were bivouacked and started out to find them.

From someone in the Waverly Beach section, they learned the approximate location of the tree house, but had hardly started through the wood, over unfamiliar terrain, when rain, hardly more than a sprinkle in the city, began to fall in bucketsful. From then on the going was tough.

The youngsters, when finally located returned home with little protest.

The tree house, which someone else built but which the youngsters improved, is doomed.

Aid Association Sign Lighted First Time

The new Neon electric sign on the roof of the Insurance building on W. College avenue, put up by the Aid Association for Lutherans, was lighted for the first time last night. Construction of the sign was completed yesterday after several weeks of work by the Jaeger Sign company, Fond du Lac.

More Showers are Likely Tomorrow

Precipitation Last Night Amounted to .08 of An Inch

Partly cloudy to cloudy skies will remain tonight and Friday with showers and probably local thunderstorms tomorrow, according to the forecast today of the United States Weather bureau for Appleton and vicinity. Light showers during the night amounted to .08 of an inch.

Somewhat cooler weather followed in the wake of precipitation and the temperature at noon today was 72 degrees on the roof of the Post-Crescent building. Maximum and minimum temperatures of 79 and 60 degrees were reported in the last 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Highest and lowest temperatures yesterday were reported at Phoenix 102, El Paso 100; Winnemucca 40 and Spokane and Boise 46.

The Appleton program for preventing traffic accidents will be considered at the Lions club luncheon meeting Monday at the Conway hotel. Lincoln H. Lippincott, secretary of the "Not Over 50" club, will explain policies of the club and how membership will aid in preventing accidents. Mr. Lippincott also will speak at Neillsville, Stevens Point, La Crosse, Madison and Viroqua.

Ben Laird is chairman in charge of the program and members of the Appleton police traffic squad have been invited to the meeting.

The "Not Over 50" club is sponsored by the Lumbermens Mutual Casualty company, Chicago, and now has a membership of more than 103,000 drivers. Wisconsin is fifth among states in number of club members. No dues or fees are charged for membership in the club.

Marston Wins Kiwanis Club Golf Tournament

Two Autos Damaged in Crash on Highway 125

Automobiles driven by Andrew Marske, 638 E. Franklin street, and Mrs. Lyman Beeman, 126 Alton court, were damaged in a collision at the intersection of Highway 125 and a side road near the Butte des Morts club about 2:30 Wednesday afternoon, according to a report to the sheriff's department. Marske was driving south on Highway 125 and Mrs. Beeman east on the side road when the collision occurred. No one was injured.

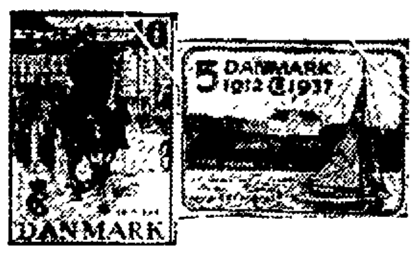
BY QUINTON JAMES

The jubilee of Europe's tallest monarch, King Christian X of Denmark, has brough a set of four stamps from Copenhagen.

The king himself is pictured riding a horse through a city street on the 10-ore brown and 30-ore blue stamps. He is an ardent horseman and for years has mounted his favorite mare early each morning for an hour's ride.

The 5-ore green pictures the summer palace at Marselisborg with a trim yacht in the foreground. Yachting is King Christian's favorite diversion. The 15-ore carmine shows Amalienborg castle, with an equestrian statue of Christian V in the foreground.



Each stamp bears the royal cipher of X within C, and the dates "1912-1937."

The 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Ordinance of 1787 and the establishing of the Northwest territory are to be commemorated by a special 3-cent stamp to be issued July 13, announces Postmaster General Farley.

In 1787 the War of Independence was but recently ended and the struggle for a national government was in progress. The states were reluctant to grant congress much power. That summer a continental convention of 12 of the states was working to produce a constitution.

Meanwhile congress met the problem of handling the Northwest territory by first getting the individual states to transfer to it their claims in this section, and then by passing the famous Ordinance of 1787 which provided for its government.

The Northwest territory lay between the Mississippi, Ohio and Great Lakes. It is now five states and part of a sixth: Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and western Pennsylvania.

The ordinance provided for "not less than three nor more than five states to be formed" in this territory: for the perpetual exclusion of slavery: for the appointment by congress of a governor: for the organization of a general assembly (1 representative for every 500 men); for the extension of the same fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty which existed in the 13 states.

The spirit of this ordinance, which encouraged the development of self-government in the American manner, made it a model act for the organization of territories.

As the ordinance was signed in New York city, where the capital was then located, first-day sales will be in this city.

Rumania is celebrating the centenary of the birth of Ioan Creanga, the writer, with a set of four large stamps. Creanga was hailed as a "national writer." His "Recollections of Childhood" and other tales embody the spirit of Moldavian peasantry.

The stamps are of two designs. The 3-lei deep rose and 6-lei chocolate bear a portrait of Creanga, while the 2-lei deep green and 4-lei purple show a picture of his home, Humulesti.

State Health Board Not Opposed to Swim Beach

City officials conferred with representatives of the state board of health at Madison and the United States War department engineering office officials at Milwaukee yesterday. Those who made the trip were Mayor Goodland: Alderman Brautigam, chairman of the street and bridge committee; Alderman Keller, chairman of the Lutz park committee, and Alderman McGillan, chairman of the recreational committee.

Representatives of the two departments may visit Appleton Thursday to inspect the site for the proposed bathing beach. Officials stated the state board of health was not opposed to use of the river for bathing and swimming. Officials of the war department at Milwaukee said they were not opposed to the proposition as long as navigation would not be interfered with.

Opening of Gardner Dam Camp Postponed

Three hundred and seventy Valley Council Boy Scouts have registered for summer oamp which will open July 18 at Gardner dam near Markton. The camp was originally scheduled to open July 11 but because Walter G. Dixon, scout executive, and other camp leaders will be at the national jamboree at Washington, D. C., until July 13, the opening was postponed for one week.

The latest troop to register for camp was Kimberly Troop 19. Twenty-three of its scouts will take part in mystery camp activities Aug. 8-15. Reservations for the six weeks have almost been completed and it is expected that final registrations will be filed within the next two weeks.

New London Set to Break Valley Tie With Manawa

New London "9" Has Chance to Take 2nd Place

Double Victory Last Sunday Over Clintonville, Neopit Boosts Hopes

NEW LONDON— All keyed up for one of the decisive games of the season is the Knapstein Brews baseball team which will meet Manawa under the lights at the city ball park at 8:15 this evening in the first Wolf Valley league encounter of the two teams. The game was postponed a week and a half ago because of wet weather.

Having defeated the two top-ranking teams in the league last Sunday, Clintonville and Neopit, the Brews are set to break the second place tie now shared with Manawa.

Westphal, with his fast ball which kept Clintonville guessing here Sunday night, may appear on the mound for New London with Tip Krohn as probable alternate. Both are at their best form hurling under the lights. Beckert will be on hand also and Orin Krohn will complete the battery behind the plate.

Bronco Sabrowsky is expected to start on the mound for Manawa, and Gene Volkman will complete the battery of the invaders. While relatively new as a pitcher, Sabrowsky won out 3 to 2 over Jim Huffmann of Waupaca in a pitching duel last Sunday. The Wolves have lost only to Clintonville and Neopit, teams defeated by the Brews in the same day last Sunday.

Golfer Scores Ace: Says 'It Can be Done Again'

It's every golfer's dream—but to Bill Lawlor getting a hole in one is just a commonplace event. At least he so remarked after returning to the Butte des Mort clubhouse Wednesday afternoon after shooting an ace on No. 12 hole with a No. 7½ iron. Bill, shooting with Fred Steinke, said, "It can be done again," after he drove the little white pill 130 yards from the tee over a creek to the green, where it rolled into the cup and leaned against the pin.

Ross, Woods Will Try Again This Evening

Indianapolis — (AP)—Barney Ross, world welterweight champion, and Chuck Woods of Detroit were set today to throw leather regardless of the weather in a ten-round, non-title bout at Perry Stadium tonight.

Rain forced a postponement last night. The Ancient Order of Hibernians, sponsor, announced the fight would be held tonight despite possible rain, because further postponement was impossible.

The champion weighed in at 143 yesterday, and Woods tipped the scales at 148, one pound more than the welterweight figure.

Braddock Bettors Asking 3 to 1 Odds on Champion

BY EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO — (AP) — The "Prince and the Pauper" world's title battle set for next Tuesday night has the betting boys jittery.

The "prince" won't be Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock. He'll step into the ring against Joe Louis one of the financially poorest boxing kings in history. From a financial standpoint, the Brown Bomber has a better claim to that title. Louis, who has earned more than $750,000 in three years, will climb through the ropes one of the wealthiest challengers of all times.

Braddock never has been in the "big money", even since beating Max Baer for the title, a chore for which he received but $31,244. Since then he has had to borrow money, so Tuesday night will be his big chance.

To date, there has been little or no wagering. One Randolph St. commissioner is holding $10,000 he'll put against $5,000 that Louis wins—and no sign yet of a taker. There are Braddock bettors asking as much as 3 and 4 to 1 odds, but the impression prevails that the night of the bout Louis will stand about 9 to 5.

Promoter Joe Foley said rainy weather slowed the ticket sale yesterday, but that about $650,000 already had been taken in. Thus far, 16,000 of the 28,000 ringside seats have been sold, comparable to 14,000 for the Louis-Max Baer fight at a corresponding pre-fight date.

As workmen continued construction of the ringside platform, which will be inclined to the Comiskey park stands, police made plans for handling the anticipated sell-out crowd of 80,000.

The fight will not be won on a foul. The Illinois State Athletic commission decided yesterday that if either boxer is fouled he will be given a rest. If he refuses to continue his opponent will be named the winner by a technical knockout

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

AN indication of the lack of material for stories from the training camp of Joe Louis is furnished by the fact that scribes covering the Kenosha drills have written more about Mushky Jackson, the camp clown, than they have about the Brown Bomber.

That's because Jackson and his unique use of the English language form much better copy than Louis and his lackadaisical training.

Mushky Jackson picks his words at random and talks by ear. There was a time when King Levinsky used the most atrocious English in sports, but Levinsky was a piker alongside of Mushky.

Art Winch, co-manager of Barney Ross, is not so well known as a destroyer of syntax, but he evidently is pretty formidable.

At least one would draw that conclusion from a conversation alleged to have taken place at Louis' camp between Jackson and Winch. "Jersey" Jones, camp publicitor, is responsible for this version of the conversation:

Winch—How yuh, Mus'ky?

Jackson—'Lo Art. I hold y'wuz sick in a horspital.

Winch—Yeah. I got gladstones and' ulsters of the stomach.

Jackson (sympathetically)—'Stoo bad. How y'feelin' now?

Winch—Okey-doke. Only I got to take it easy or I'll get a collapse.

Jackson—I ain't feelin' so well m'self. I got poison ivory, on'y it ain't poison ivory. It's some kind of a rash what I got maybe from eatin' sumpin'. I gotta get rejections in the arm for it to make me immunion to it. But whatcha doin' in Kinosha? Ain't yuh an' Barney (Ross) over at Braddock's?

Winch—Yeah, but I 'tought I'd look Louis over an' see what kinda shape he's in. Braddock looks great.

Jackson— (sniffing) — Aw, anybody'd look great wit' dem bums Braddock's got to woik wit'. A lotta stiffs.

Winch—I dunno. Mus'ky. Dey ain't so bad. Braddock's got better guys as Louis has got.

Jackson—(indignantly)— Lissen, Art, I got charge've da sparrin' partners here, an' I pick 'em poisonally. I'll match any guy I got wit' anyt'ing Braddock's got.

Winch—I dunno, Mus'ky. But, anyways, Braddock looks great. He's in th' pink-ve perdition. He's boxin' fine, an' punchin' hard. Louis is a sucker for a right. Don't be s'prised if Braddock knocks him stiff.

Jackson—Not a chanct. Art. Not a chanct. Don't go talkin' like a drug attic or sumpin'. Braddock ain't in Louis' caregories. He ain't fought in two years. I seen pitchers've him, an he looks soft. He's got too much soipus fat.

Winch— (dubiously) — Don't go by them pitchers. Dey're receivin' sometimes. I been aroun' this racket an' I'm tellin' yuh, Mus'ky, Braddock looks great. Now, get me right, Mus'ky. I ain't playin' no fav'ritisms. It's the gossip trut'. I'm partial. I'm neuter. It don't mean nuthin' to me who wins. But I been watchin' Braddock close, an' I'm tellin' yuh, Mus'ky, he looks great. He's in fine kettle. Bein' champeen has given him poised an' confident. He'd lick Louis—maybe knock him out.

Jackson—Not a chanct, Art. Not a chanct. Louis a sure t'ing. A sure t'ing. Plain comic sense'll tell yuh no guy can lay off two years an' lick a great fighter like Louis. Louis is so soiten to win I'd betcha everythin' I got if I had anythin' to bet.

Winch— (insistently) — I'm still sayin' Braddock'll win. Louis is a sucker for a right. Braddock's got a right. He'll pulmonize Louis.

Jackson—Lissen, Art, I'm surrestitious. June 22 is my boit'day. My forty-foist boit-day. So how can Louis lose?

Winch—Well, guess I'll be goin'.

Jackson—Give my poisonal regards to Barney, Art.

Winch—Sure. S'long.

Jackson—S'long.

Zimmer Hits Homer as Erb Park Juniors Win

The Erb park Juniors defeated the Erb park Cubs this morning in a game at the park, 16 to 14. The hurlers for the Juniors were Eugene Schwaller and Jim Zueleger and David Zwicker the catcher. Zimmer pitched and Heise caught for the losers. Zimmer hit a home run.

Coaches Pick U. of S. C. To Win in Field Meet

Berkeley, Calif.—(AP)— Coaches of the National Collegiate Athletic association figure University of Southern California to win the team championship, with Stanford second and Indiana third, in the NCAA track and field meet here tomorrow and Saturday.

At a meeting last night the coaches picked Michigan to place fourth, with Washington State, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Temple and Pittsburgh following.

Nearly 300 athletes, the cream of the country's track talent, were on hand.

Southern California's favoritism is due in part to the high-soaring activities of Bill Sefton and Earle Meadows, pole-vaulting "twins" who have both topped 14 feet 11 inches this season, an unofficial world's record.

THE WEEK'S GAMES

June 15—Woolen 6, Post-Tuttle 4.

June 16—Coated 8, Atlas 5.

June 17—Machine s versus Fox River.

A home run by Smokey Williams with two men on base was the big blow in a 5-run rally during the second inning which gave the Coated Paper an 8-5 win over the Atlas Mill squad in the American league last night. The winners salted away the game in the eighth inning by scoring two runs.

Williams pitched for the winners and held the Atlas sluggers hitless for the first four and two-thirds innings although they scored one run. The losers scored three runs in the sixth and one in the seventh to bring the margin to 6-5 but Coated then tallied twice in the eighth frame.

Gebheim started for the losers and lasted a little more than three innings after which Heible took over the hurling job. Williams struck out four and issued walks to seven batsmen while Gebheim passed two and struck out one. Heible faned four and walked two.

Forsters Beat Neenah Team in Starlight Tilt

Forsters Tavern softball team defeated the Commercial Inns of Neenah 6 to 3 in a starlight tilt last night at the Forster field, the game being called after the sixth inning because of rain. The Commercial Inns scored one run in the first inning and added two more in the second, while two circuit clouts gave the Forster squad their six runs. Schroeder homered for Forsters with the bases loaded in the third inning and Les Gebheim duplicated the feat with one man on base in the fifth. Kwiatkowski and Handler formed the Neenah battery and Eddie Mitchell and Les Gebheim handled the heavy duty for Forsters.

Mitchell allowed four hits, struck out eight men and walked one, while Kwiatkowski gave up six hits, struck out four and walked seven. McClone got two hits in two trips, Schroeder two in three times at bat and Gebheim and Dietzen each one in three trips. The Neenah team claimed it was not at full strength and challenged Forsters to another game Friday evening. Ploetz Taverns and the Schaefer Dairy squad will clash at 8:30 tonight at the Forster field.

Chicago Getting Het Up Over Fight, Cubs, Sox

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

CHICAGO —(AP)— This bustling town is filling up for the big fight. . . All you hear talked in the spots around the noisy loop is Braddock and Louis, a city world's series between the spurting Cubs and White Sox and Saturday's American derby hoss race at Washington Park. . . Right now it looks like the odds will be about 9 to 5 on Louis by Tuesday night. . . Surprisingly little dough is being laid on the line. . . (The bangtails get it out this way). . .

Ran into Freddy Lindstrom, former Giant, Cub and Dodger at Kenosha yesterday. . . Freddy quit the Dodgers last year because he didn't think he was hitting enough for the coin he was getting. . . He looks fit and it itching to get back into baseball. . . . Seems some major league club could use him. . . Drift Along, one of the flappers out at Washington Park, has won her last three starts by five lengths. . . Jimmy Dykes, manager of the surprising White Sox, collected $65 in bets for laying off cigars for a month. . . . Clay Bryant, young pitcher for the Cubs, who is the talk of the National league these days, has turned in 18 consecutive innings of scoreless ball.

Ho, hum. . . A week ago Louis looked terrible and Braddock looked great. . . Now it is just the reverse. . . What is it, a gag? . . . Hype Igoe, the eminent boxing expert of the New York Evening Journal, is ill here with a skin disease. . . If Joe Louis takes Braddock and Schmeling (and doesn't go through with his decision to quit) Mike Jacobs plans to take him on a tour of Europe next winter. . . . Glad to see Wally Berger getting a long deserved chance with a top flight club. . . His mark of 38 homers in 1930 still is the record for a first year man in the majors. . . . Incidentally, it looks like Hank Leiber is out for the rest of the season.

Baseball men out this way think the Cincinnati Reds are going to be sorry for letting Outfielder Joe Dwyer, the slugger from the Southern association, get away from them. . . . Some of the prizes for amateurs offered in the $10,000 Chicago open golf tournament July 23-25 included radios, refrigerators, furniture and free trips to French Lick Springs. . . . The United States Golf association kicked and now the amateurs are going to be limited to three prizes, none to cost more than $50. . . Too bad. . . That trip to French Lick wouldn't be hard to take. . . . The minute the White Sox took to the road, Lionel Levy, chief architect for Mike Jacobs, moved into Comiskey park and began laying out the joint for the fisticuffs.

Name 5 Referees For Title Battle

Expect "Little Phil" Collins Will be Chosen As Official

Chicago—(AP)—One of five referees sitting at the ringside at Comiskey park next Tuesday night will receive a "nod" as James J. Braddock and his Negro challenger, Joe Louis, climb into the ring to battle for the world's heavyweight championship.

That nod, coming from Joseph Triner, chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission, means that the referee chosen will climb into the ring with Braddock and Louis.

Who will be third man in the ring will be known only to Chairman Triner and his associate on the commission, George F. Getz, millionaire coal operator and sportsman. Their secret will be withheld until just before the battle starts.

The five referees are "Little Phil" Collins, Dave Miller, Tommy Thomas, Joseph McNamara and Frank "Spike" McAdams.

The lucky referee selected will receive $1,000 for his services.

But he may not be so lucky after all because everybody figures he will be on the spot and must be quick witted and sharp to master any situation that may develop any second

The best guess is that "Little Phil" Collins, himself a former featherweight fighter and in business life a department head in the city of Chicago Water department, will be the referee chosen.

Miss Goldie Bateson, Milwaukee, Defeated In Women's Golf Open

Chicago —(AP)— Betty Botterill, a persistent young woman from Salt Lake City, who has made several visits to Women's Western golf affairs without success, is giving the 1937 open tournament field something to think about.

She just managed to qualify with a 92 Monday. Then on Tuesday she eliminated Rena Nelson, a crack Chicago district player, 5 and 3 and yesterday she came from behind with a display of sub-par golf to beat Miss Goldie Bateson of Milwaukee, one up, on the twenty-first hole. Miss Botterill trailed, three down with five to go before she staged her brilliant comeback.

Miss Botterill met Mrs. Russell Mann, Milwaukee, today. Mrs. Mann defeated Eva Shorb, Massillon, O., one up yesterday. Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I., squared off against pretty Paula Parker of Milwaukee, in another quarter-final match. Miss Parker defeated Hilda Livengood, Danville, Ill., 4 and 2. Babe Didrickson of Beaumont, Tex., also was in the running. She faced Dorothy Foster of Springfield, Ill.

Tentative Dates for Open Golf Meet Set

New York — (AP) — The 1938 open championship of the United States Golf association will be played at the Cherry Hills club, Englewood, Colorado, near Denver, the U. S. A announced today. The dates will be either June 2, 3 and 4 or June 9, 10 and 11 depending on the dates for the 1938 British open championships, which have not yet been announced.

The 1938 amateur championship will be played at the Oakmont Country club, near Pittsburgh.

Colored Nine to Show at Kaukauna

Indianapolis A's Clash With Electric City Brewers Tonight

Kaukauna—Electric City Brewers will play the first of a series of night exhibition baseball games here at 8:15 tonight when they clash with the Indianapolis A's, third-place team in the National-Negro league. The colored team played at Green Bay last night and is rated as one of the best traveling attractions in baseball.

Manager Howard Bowers has announced that Howie Radder, who performed with the University of Wisconsin nine, has been signed as an outfielder and will be ready for the tilt tonight. Radder is a hard hitter and is expected to boost the Kaukauna club's batting power.

Sonny Carvenaugh will start on the mound, with Peck catching. Others in the lineup will be Baldy, Eggert, at first; Van Drasek, at second; Powell, in short, and Zelinski, at third. Vils, Radder and Kappel should show in the outfield.

Mike Sexton or Wally Pierce will do the pitching for the A's, with both boys getting a boost from their manager, Bill James. James promised fans plenty of baseball thrills when they see his outfit cut capers on the diamond. Sexton uses a screw ball, with a variety of benders and plenty of speed. Pierce throws from the port side and has a deceptive change of pace.

Newsom, Ferrell Doing Well With Their New Clubs

Former Defeats White Sox, Latter Downs the Tigers

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

THE change of air and scenery, from Washington to Boston (and vice versa) sems to have been just what the doctor ordered for Buck Newsom and Wes Ferrell

Whatever else last week's deal between the Senators and Red Sox may prove in future, it already has shown definitely that there's still a lot of pitching left in the salary wings of both Newsom, now with Boston, and Ferrell, at present serving them up for the Nats.

Until they were traded, both were well on the way to having the worst year of their careers

But, whether the change of locale also fixed the well known temperament of each, or whether the new air put some of the old zip back in their "soupbones," each is now travelling at 1 000 clip in his new uniform. Ferrell started out by stopping the onrushing White Sox in his first action as a Senator last week, and yesterday topped the Tigers 2-1 in 12 innings. Newsom, just reversing the procedure, whipped the Tigers first and followed up with a 3-2 win over the White Sox yesterday.

Allows 8 Hits

Ferrell, allowed but eight hits in the 12 innings he worked. Newsom handcuffed the White Sox with five Ferrell, with his corner-cutting control and "nuthin" ball back in service, has walked but six men and given 12 hits in 21 innings of full-time work. Newsom, giving the opposition a lot of his strikeout ball, has fanned 18, walked 15, and allowed 11 hits in 18 innings

The defeats for the White Sox and Tigers helped the Yankees stretch their American league lead to two full games yesterday. The New Yorkers, themselves, took a hand in the pastime of belting first-division contenders by stopping the Cleveland Indians 4-1 behind Lefty Gomez's six-hit, nine-strikeout pitching.

The New York Giants came from way behind to top the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 with an eighth-inning, three-run rally, and thereby advanced to within five percentage points of the National league lead, held by the Chicago Cubs, whose game with the Boston Bees was rained out.

The Cardinals clouted Phillies' pitching for 14 hits and a 7-6 win for their fifth straight triumph. The St. Louis Browns tagged the Athletics 3-2. Rain washed out the scheduled night game between the Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds.

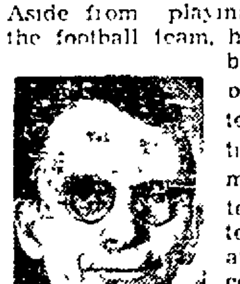
Clarence Munn, Gopher Guard, Another Favorite of Woodward, Packer Trainer

(Sports EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth of a series on athletic training by Dave Woodward, trainer of the Green Bay Packers, National professional football champions.)

MY fifth all-American, Clarence Munn, was selected as all-American guard, and was coached by Herbert (Fritz) Crisler. Munn also was a man who had all the physical perfection necessary for a great athlete "Biggy" as he was called, probably as one of the greatest all-around athletes that North high school of Minneapolis Minn., ever has known. Aside from playing fullback on the football team, he was a member of the basketball team, and practically a one-man track team. His afternoon's work at a track meet consisted of the shot put, discus and 100 and 200 yard dashes, and the relay races.



Woodward

On entering the university Munn was placed in a halfback position, but due to the fact that Minnesota had an over-abundance of backfield material that year, and was sadly in need of tackles, Munn was shifted to a tackle position, where he made his letter.

Unfortunately, near the end of that season, Munn received a bad injury to his knee, pulling the internal lateral ligament This occurred near the last game of the season, so instead of taking the chance of further aggravating this injury in football, we concentrated on getting him ready for indoor track, as Munn was a great shot putter

Now at Princeton

At the start of his junior year Fritz Crisler, now football coach at Princeton, was appointed athletic director and football coach at Minnesota. Of course, Crisler started Munn in the tackle position, and we had only scrimmaged into about our second week of practice, when Munn re-injured his knee in the same way, showing us that the knee had become chronically weak.

As Munn was a great punter, and we were about to open our conference schedule, something had to be done, and right there Coach Crisler used exceedingly good judgment, by placing Munn into a guard position. This move in Munn's football career made him an All-American. From then on, during his junior and senior years Munn played great football never missing another game, although of course his knee was taped properly each day, regardless of the type of practice that was held

Dash Man's Speed

Munn, although weighing 225 pounds and standing only 5 feet 10 inches, had the speed of a dash man, which helped his blocking assignment when he would pull out from the guard position. The great speed that he possessed gained plenty of ground, as Munn would run from punt formations, and also on the receiving end of lateral passes. In other words Munn would pull out of the guard position, fake his block, and then sprint and receive the lateral pass from the end who had received the forward pass. This play required perfect timing and a fast change of pace.

Munn was a faithful trainer. He would take any advice I gave him, and follow it to the letter. The fact is, the man had so much confidence in his catches and trainer's judgment, that he seemed to think we were infallable. For instance, I recall the day that Munn broke the Big Ten conference shot put record Munn always had his knee bandaged for track, and as a joke I wrote on his bandage the distance I considered he was capable of doing, and which would break the conference record. It so happened that our bit of fun worked out right, for Munn broke the record by two inches more than I had set for him.

After graduating from Minnesota, he was appointed to the coaching staff as freshman football and track coach. From there he went to Albright college as head coach, and now is line coach at Syracuse university.

Munn also has acted as an instructor in boys' camps, and it always has been his aim to teach and help boys to become physically fit.

Munn had a full schedule of work, study and play, and certainly merited the unanimous choice for all-America.

Columbus Birds Wallop St. Paul

Score Is 19 to 2; Milwaukee Brewers are Rained Out

Chicago — (AP)—If the Columbus Red Birds ever get going at the pace now being set by their young outfielder, Johnny Rizzo, the Birds may cause plenty of trouble before this American association season ends.

They showed signs of attaining the Rizzo tempo yesterday as they whipped St Paul 19 to 2. Rizzo, who has led association batsmen for several weeks and now holds an average of 396 had only two hits in seven trips, but one of them was a homer which sparked his mates along in a big ninth inning splurge good for 11 runs

In that frame the birds pounded out 10 hits and 17 players batted. Every man on the club except one scored in the inning. Earlier in the game, Sam Slaughter and George Washington hit homers. Bill McGee went the route for the victors, allowing 11 hits as the Birds annexed 24 off four Saint flingers.

The Saints Red Birds contest was the only one played yesterday. The Toledo-Minneapolis tilt was called after the first inning because of rain, while wet grounds and threatening weather resulted in postponement of two night games between [illegible] and Kansas City and [illegible] and Milwaukee.

Seeded Stars Clash In Clay Court Meet

Chicago—(AP)—Four battles between seeded stars were on today's program of the 27th annual national clay courts tennis championships. Rain forced postponement of yesterday's card.

Joe Hunt of Los Angeles, rated third, will meet Thane Halstead of Chicago, No. 14, while Martin Buxby, Miami, Fla., seeded seventh, will oppose Vernon Marcum, Lakeland, Fla., rated thirteenth. Defense Problems Come Under Two Categories

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Yesterday I analyzed a hand in which a defender's haste to establish tricks was fatal. I pointed out that, in a broad sense, problems of defense can be divided into two categories— one where the need for immediacy is apparent, the other where the best plan is to sit tight and wait for the declarer to concede unavoidable losers. It is not always possible for the defenders to determine which of these plans is advisable and on these occasions they are indeed "on the spot." Usually, however, analysis of the cards in sight in connection with the previous bidding will point out whether aggressive or waiting tactics should be used. In the hand shown below the correct defense should have been obvious to East:

East, dealer.
North-South vulnerable

NORTH

♣ Q

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Pass	1 no trump	3 clubs
Pass	3 no trump	Pass	Pass
Pass

North's three club bid was far from good. Since South had taken no action over the heart bid North had no right to feel there was a good chance for game. He had excellent defense against the opponent's no trump and should not have warned them away from that contract. It must be admitted, however, that the three club bid turned out well.

West decided to make a surprise attack and, instead of opening partner's suit, led the deuce of diamonds. Dummy played the jack and East's king held the trick. East then made a fatal error. On the hope that partner had led from a five card diamond suit and would duck a return lead, thus leaving a diamond communication card in East's hand, East returned the nine of diamonds. Unfortuately for the defenders this play clinched the contract since it established a diamond trick in dummy for the ninth trick.

If East had done a little counting of tricks he would have seen the complete fallacy of his "reasoning" about the length of West's diamond suit. Seven club tricks were staring East in the face. The heart king was absolutely marked in declarer's hand, as was the spade ace! It was this latter factor with which East should have reckoned. Had West held the spade ace, in addition to the diamond ace already shown, he either would have taken more action over the original heart bid or would have doubled the final contract. Thus, since to establish either a heart or a diamond trick for declarer was a case of presenting him with nine stricks, East easily should have seen that the one hope was to establish spade tricks before declarer could set up either a heart or diamond. The lead of the spade king, of course, would have produced this result.

It is a physical impossibility for any one to defend properly unless he counts the declarer's visible and marked tricks.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Double	Redouble	?

What should East do, holding ♠ 8 7 3 ♥ 10 8 5 4 ♦ 9 2 ♣ Q 8 7 4 ?

Answer: East should bid one heart.

SUMMER LUNCHEON
(For Family Or Friends)
Toasted Tomato Sandwiches
Ripe Olives
Radishes
Pineapple Cookies Strawberries
Raspberry Chill

Toasted Tomato Sandwiches

6 pieces bread
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
6 slices tomatoes
6 large thin slices cheese
6 strips bacon
6 onion rings

Toast bread slices on one side and arrange them on a flat pan. Spread with butter mixed with mustard and seasonings. Top with rest of the ingredients. Bake or broil until the bacon is crisp and the rest of the ingredients a light brown color. (It will require about 8 minutes.) Watch them carefully to prevent burning. Serve warm with a fork.

Pineapple Cookies

½ cup butter
1½ cups granulated sugar
2 eggs
½ cup crushed pineapple.
1 teaspoon lemon extract
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda

Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and pineapple. Beat well. Add the rest of the ingredients, mixing lightly. Drop portions of the stiff dough from the tip of a spoon onto greased baking sheets. Bake 10 minutes in a moderate oven. These are good cookies to serve with chilled beverages or frozen desserts.

Raspberry Chill

1 cup granulated sugar
2 cups water
1 cup raspberry juice
½ cup orange juice
½ cup lemon juice
2 cups iced tea
4 cups iced water
6 mint leaves chopped

Boil sugar and water 3 minutes. Cool and add rest of the ingredients. Chill until serving time. Serve in glasses half filled with chopped ice.

Thick sandwich fillings, such as cheese, may be mixed with soft butter. Only one "spreading" is then necessary for the sandwiches.

Beauty in Black Sheer

The new square neckline on this afternoon frock of sheer black rayon is softened by narrow inlays of black net. Its shoulders are slightly broadened, its skirt a bit flared. The only touch of color in the ensemble is the wide bow of dull pink felt on the black felt pillbox.

Story of the Circus

IV—ACROBATS AND ANIMAL TRAINERS

How many somersaults can a man make after leaping from a springboard over the backs of a row of animals?

That question was asked many times by circus folk during the past century. At first the answer was "One!" Then it was "Two!" At last there came a time when some said, "Maybe three!"

Trained elephant holding performer aloft.

The long leaps were made by men who ran down a runway until their feet landed on a springboard. Then they went hurtling through the air, over the backs of horses, elephants and camels. Beyond the last animal was a thick mat

After careful training, many leapers were able to turn one or two somersaults before landing safely on the mat. The trouble came when efforts were made to turn three. Man after man failed, and died from a broken neck or back.

Several leapers at last succeeded in performing the trick. One did it by accident. He started to make a double-semersault, but got started around a third time and kept going — landing safely. Another leaper failed, but came down without harm to himself on the back of an elephant!

In these days, there are not so many animals in the circus menagerie as was the custom 10 or 15 years ago. This is partly because public zoos have made wild animals seem less strange. Some circuses have giraffes, however, and giraffes are not to be found at most zoos.

Wild animal trainers put themselves in danger when they handle lions, leopards and tigers. These beasts may obey for a long while, but when the man or woman in charge of them makes a mistake, it is likely to mean an early grave.

Perhaps the most skillful lion tamer in circus history was George Conklin. He used to appear in a large cage containing several lions and one or two leopards. With a lion called Pompey, he carried on a tug-of-war. Holding a long piece of meat, he let the lion seize one end. Then Conklin put the other end of the meat in his own mouth, and man and beast pulled against each other.

Conklin also taught a lion to waltz to the music of the "Blue Danube," played by the circus band. While a waltz was going on one day, the man stepped on the tail or paw of another lion, and was bitten in the thigh. Twisting around, he struck the animal over the head with the butt of his whip, and made it let go.

The wound sent Conklin to the hospital and it did not heal for several weeks. Another man took his place in the cage, but was bitten in the leg by Pompey and died from blood poisoning. Years afterward, Pompey escaped from his cage during a fire at Bridgeport, Conn., and was killed in a street by bullets from a policeman's revolver.

Milk Is Necessary Food For Youths, Patri Says

BY ANGELO PATRI

Along about one-thirty in the morning a heavy truck rumbles by the farmhouse. "The milk truck going to the city with the children's milk," I think happily. "Grand that we have such service for the young ones That will get down to the city in time for their breakfasts, all sweet and cool and clovery. Lovely story, milk."

There are the cows in the meadow eating, eating all morning. When the shadows begin to lie on the grass they walk over to the brook, take a long drink, then file slowly, calmly, evenly as time itself, toward the big trees along the wall. They bend their knees, lie down and chew their cuds. They are making milk for the children and the children will drink it not knowing of the sweet grass and clover, the cool, sparkling water of the brook, the sun and sky and the blessing of God that made it especially for them. But they will drink it and grow, their eyes will shine and their cheeks will glow, all because of the milk that flows to them out of the fullness of an infinite bounty. Milk is the children's own drink.

Then why do people make such a mistake as to give a child coffee or tea or beer? These are drinks that weary adults use to restore their strength and vigor for a moment. They can do children no good because they contain no food in themselves. They are stimulants, and children have no need for stimulants. They have within them sufficient energy to tire out a regiment of men should it be released upon them. They create a taste that does a child no good, but which threatens to do them harm.

"She wants coffee. No, no, darling. You don't drink coffee."

"O, put a little in her milk. It won't hurt her."

Now why? Why spoil the child's milk with the grown-up's coffee? It is a fine way to teach the baby to like coffee, but is that what is wanted? Few people are so stupid as to want to teach a child to drink these stimulants. They believe that what gives them so much pleasure must give the infant the same delight. They want to share a good thing with the child. They cultivate the taste for the coffee or tea or beer in a child who would never have thought of using either of them if he had been allowed to drink his milk.

It is natural for a child to want to drink what he sees other people enjoying. Any child will reach for anything he sees other folk drinking, but that is no reason why he should have it. If he is thirsty give him a drink of water or milk and don't allow any false sympathy to lead you into giving him something harmful to drink. And remember, too, that coffee or tea or any form of alcoholic drink is bad for a child.

Milk is the children's drink. Give it to them generously. It is food and drink, and they thrive on it as they thrive on no other drink. Stint them on sweets, pastry, meat, if need be, but give them their milk. It is their first and their best drink in infancy, in childhood, in adolescence. It is good even in old age.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

High School Girls Enjoy Beauty Gifts

BY ELSIE PIERCE

I AM continuing where we left off yesterday . . . the Mother of the three charming daughters (graduating respectively from elementary, high school and college is still speaking) . . . .

"Many mothers may feel that fifteen is too young to start using powder. Not so many years ago I thought so myself. But I found that Youth will have its fling; and that if a young girl wants a bit of powder she'll either borrow it from a friend— and they don't have very definite scruples about interchange of soiled powder puffs, the young fry — or she'll seek a substitute. Some six years ago the oldest borrowed from the flour cache. It is, therefore, so much better to treat the fifteen or sixteen year old to a box of powder—a good box, for the young skin is worthy of only the best. If you want to flatter a young one immensely, take her to a reputable salon where powder is blended to the individual skin, and let them make up a special box for her."

Powder, then, is my suggestion as the between elementary school and high school graduation gift. The young high school graduate may also have a colorless lip pomade, a colorless eyelash grower to brush on her lashes; a not-very-intense shade of rouge for special events. As a rule, I don't like to see the young girl use artificial color. I feel that she should be outdoors enough to have a natural color of her own. But for parties a bit of the synthetic blush can't hurt. Again I stress, however, the importance of a fine quality rouge.

The highschool graduate or the girl of highschool age is very often troubled with eruptions, blackheads, pimples. Many mothers make the mistake of regarding these too lightly. Many mothers, modern mothers at that, still feel "it is natural, and you'll outgrow it." This is a fallacy. It isn't natural. And all too often the outgrowing process brings permanent scars and pits. It the mean-time, too, the young girl suffers untold torture (mostly mental), is humiliated and embarrasesd, turns down party dates, shrinks from the company of others. All this may mean a permanent inferiority complex. It's a serious problem to the young one and the Mother should treat it as seriously.

Hygienic habits, more than ever, need encouraging. The daily, warm, scrub bath helps to throw the pores open, helps the skin to throw off wastes. Fresh air and exercise stimulate healthy circulation and the blood stream is the best healing agent. A balanced diet with plenty of fruits and salads and vegetables helps too, elimination of sweets and starches in excess is recommended and above all regular elimination habits are important. If your daughter is troubled with a blemished skin treat her to a healing cream or lotion, keep creams off—keep her hands scrupulously clean (a gift of a bland soap, nail brush and complexion brush is not amiss).

Teach her "The Young Girl's Beauty Rites" (bulletin on request. Please include a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope). Address Miss Pierce in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Children Often Help Hold Family Together

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am very much in love with a married man who is in love with me and I want to marry him. He needs my love and the financial help I can give him. Here is the obstacle: He has four children and a wife who seems to be nice enough. She has loads of friends and is well thought of in the community. I have been fair and acted like a lady toward her. I went to her and told her of my love for her husband and that I wanted him. Instead of hating me, she told me she pitied me because a love like mine was bound to bring me unhappiness. But she refused to give up her husband because she said he belonged to his children and that it was for them to decide, when they were of age, if they were willing to let me have their father.

Her calmness angered me. I wrote her a letter and she ignored it and she never even mentioned my visit or letter to her husband. Has she no pride? The man loves me so much that he is willing to give her all the children and the possessions she now has. There are three very pretty girls and I think I could win them because I have plenty of money. But the boy is older and will stick to his mother.

The wife said to me: "Big boys try to run away just like little boys do, but they always come back. I want to save him from being sorry." I told his wife that I would commit murder rather than give him up. She replied: "With a world full of single men I would hate to have to shoot some one to get a man."

She is well educated and makes him feel as though he wasn't. I am his equal. He is very lonely. If she won't divorce him, shall I live openly with him? M. F.

Answer:

"The world do move," as Brother Jasper says, and manners and customs change, and if you want to see how far we have got away from the old standards and points of view consider this letter.

Here are the portraits of two women: One a young girl, the other a wife and mother of four children. Both are modernistic to the nth degree and their way of solving the age-old problem of the human triangle is so different from the method used by the women of the past that it makes us gasp.

First the girl, young, selfish, undisciplined, ruthless, determined to take what she wants no matter whom she robs or what lives she tramples into the dust; thinks money will buy anything; despises virtue as old-fashioned; hard as nails, no compassion or gentleness in her; crazed for the moment with a passion that is purely animal and that would not survive the strain and stress of domestic life.

Even a decade ago a girl who fell in love with a married man would have considered it a guilty love and hidden it in a secret place in her heart. She would have gone in subtle and nefarious ways about winning him away from his wife. But this modern girl goes boldly to the wife and demands her husband of her as nonchalantly as if she were asking for a ham sandwich. And she thinks the wife is a stingy old meanie and a spoilsport because she refuses to hand him over and wreck her home and half-orphan her children to gratify her whim.

Then the wife. Sophisticated, wise in the knowledge of life and evidently wise to the ways of a philandering husband. No doubt she sees through him and recognizes him for the worthless cad he is, and if she were alone concerned would be glad enough to turn him over to any woman who wanted him. But there are the children to be educated, given a social position and started in the world and the husband, poor as he is, is the pin that holds the home together.

So, instead of hating the girl who is trying to rob her of her husband, she is filled with compassion for her. Instead of upbraiding her, she gives her good counsel. In a word, she meets the situation with philosophy and handles it like a diplomat. Yet it hasn't been long since wives went into hysterics over their husbands' lady loves and rushed to the divorce court at the slightest intimation that their husbands were sidestepping, and spent the remainder of their lives grieving over the loss of husbands whom they were lucky to get rid of at any price!

As for M. F.'s two questions as to whether she shall kill her rival or become the man's mistress, I should strongly advise her against either. Both are messy and end in trouble for the woman. And that holds as good of the modern girl as of the old-fashioned one.

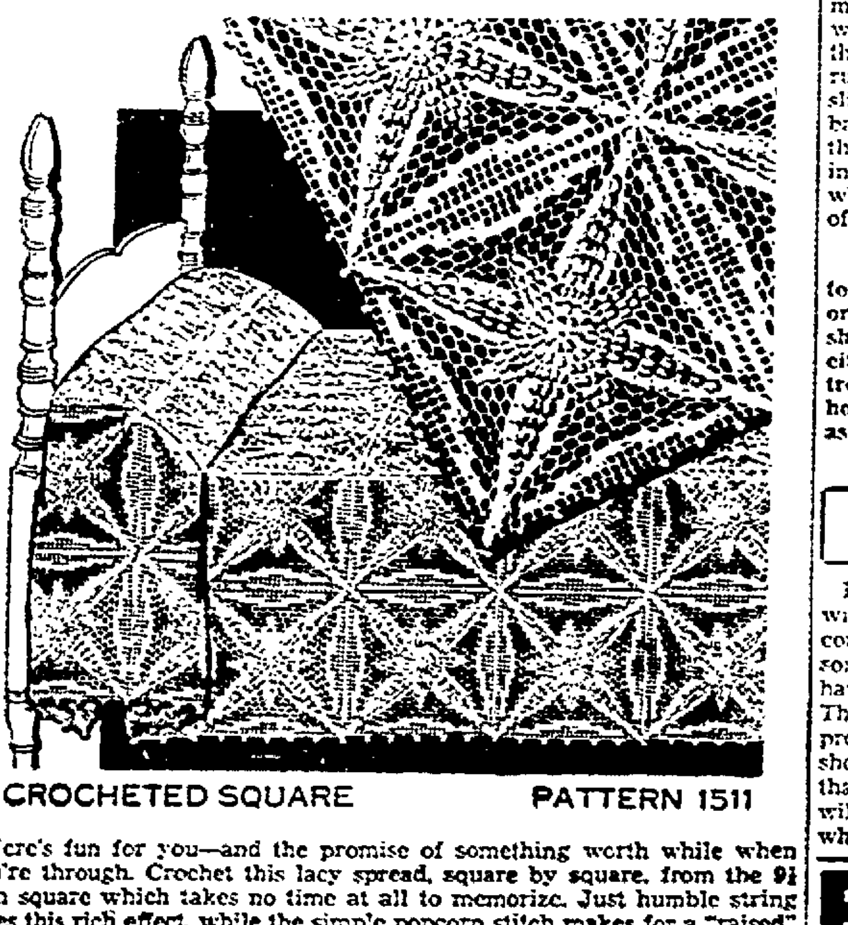
POPCORN SQUARES FOR BEDSPREAD



CROCHETED SQUARE PATTERN 1511

Here's fun for you—and the promise of something worth while when you're through. Crochet this lacy spread, square by square, from the 9½ inch square which takes no time at all to memorize. Just humble string gives this rich effect, while the simple popcorn stitch makes for a "raised" continuous pattern. Crochet a pillow-top to match. Pattern 1511 contains directions for making the square: material requirements; illustrations of the square and of all stitches used; a photograph of the square.

My Neighbor Says—

Hot sun, particularly if coupled with high winds, is a dangerous condition. They quickly dry out the soil and often shrivel seedlings that have gotten above ground safely. Therefore the seed bed should be protected from the hottest sun and should be in a sheltered position so that the force of a drying wind will be broken. This is one reason why a frame is preferable for outdoor seed sowing; the sides effectually break the force of any drying winds.

To wash spinach quickly and thoroughly, fill three pans with lukewarm water and lift the spinach from one pan to the other. If you use only one pan and pour off the water, some of the sand is bound to stick to the pan and get back in the spinach. This way the sand settles in the bottom of each pan, and there it stays.

When preparing fruit salad, sprinkle bananas, peaches, pears and apples with lemon juice or marinate with French dressing as soon as they are out. This prevents discoloration from exposure to air.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

A B C'S IN MANNERS

1—You have said that wearing flowers on a gown during commencement exercises is as wrong as pinning flowers on a military uniform. But would you consider carrying small bouquets of class flowers out of place too?

Answer: No. You may carry flowers if you like. In fact, it is not unusual to carry a bouquet that is almost an armfull.

2—We have heard indirectly that the wives of some of our teachers were hurt last year at our class banquet when we did not seat them beside their own husbands. In fact, one of the wives is supposed to have said that she would never come again if it happened again this year. As it happend, her husband was the principal speaker and this is probably why she wanted especially to sit next to him. My mother says if we seat them together we will be breaking the correct seating order, and yet if we do what is right, unjust criticism will again be heaped upon our class. Under the circumstances, what would you say we should do?

Answer: Much as I dislike running the chance of hurting your teachers' feelings, I would prove myself incompetent to write on the subject of etiquette if I gave approval of seating wives and husbands next to each other anywhere except at their own weddings or their wedding anniversaries. Whether or not you choose to establish a precedent for that which is incorrect is something that you alone can decide.

3—My conscience hurts me and I wish you'd either relieve it or tell me the worst. I was sitting in the living room of a classmate's house when her mother came home unexpectedly and into this room. I had a number of books spread out on my lap and couldn't get up without much fuss, so I stayed put. The thing that worries me is that I didn't ask her to excuse my not getting up. She's probably thinking that I knew no better.

Answer: Now that it is done don't cry over spilled milk. But you are quite right in your feeling that you ought at least to have explained why you couldn't get up.

4—I'm only fifteen but would like to send out my own invitations to a small dance. Mother thinks because I'm inviting boys as well as girls that she had better send them for me. I don't see why boys make it improper for me to send my own invitations, and anyway, I think it improper for mother to give the impression that she is giving this party in my honor when actually I'm arranging everything and even paying for it with birthday money.

Answer: According to modern custom, young people of your age inviting those of their own age send their invitations themselves—always, and whether they invite girls alone or boys as well as girls.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

Such plants as asters and anthemis should be staked as soon as they have made a few inches of growth. If allowed to sprawl on the ground, they form roots on their stems and soon make very untidy plants. June is the month when most staking of garden plants should be done. Many persons are inclined to forget about staking until plants begin to flop. They are about a month too late. Small stakes should be used early in the season and larger ones later as the plants grow. At this time of year staking should be attended to every week to keep up with the growth of the plants. If such a system is followed the stakes need never tower over the plants and be unsightly.

All-Paper Camp Will Feature at Scout Jamboree

Valley Contingent Completes Exhibits for National Gathering

Although its all-paper camp will be one of the outstanding features at the Boy Scout national jamboree, Valley Council scouts are expected to gain additional prestige with their woodcraft exhibit and a large map of Wisconsin showing the location of the Valley Council area.

When the scouts arrive at Washington June 30 for the 10-day jamboree, they will set up their all-paper cabins which have been constructed through the cooperation of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company, Kaukauna. While at the jamboree, Valley Council scouts will sleep on paper beds, use paper knapsacks and raincoats, paper cups and plates.

A committee composed of W. E Schubert, J. H. Dunham and Carl Schaefer, representing the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, is preparing a large map of Wisconsin on which the Valley Council area will be marked off.

The woodcraft exhibit which won first place at the New London jamboree last week will be displayed in the "Trail of Citizenship" at Washington. The exhibit was prepared by Boy Scouts of troop 23, Clintonville, of which Lloyd Pinkowsky is scoutmaster. Knife and axe work will be featured in the display.

A sectional gateway for Boy scouts from Wisconsin, upper Michigan and upper Illinois is being prepared by J. Wesley Olsen, Menasha scoutleader, and E. E. Thomas, scout commissioner. This gateway will be placed in front of the Wisconsin scout camp at the national jamboree.

Obtain Subscriptions For Jamboree Journal

Several subscriptions to the "Jamboree Journal," official Boy Scout newspaper during the national jamboree at Washington June 30-July 10, were ordered today by Walter G. Dixon, Valley Council scout executive. About 26 Valley Council scouts will attend the jamboree and it is expected that more subscriptions will be purchased at Washington.

The "Jamboree Journal" is a newspaper without a past and without a future as the first issue will be distributed June 30 and the last issue July 10. It is expected that thousands of parents whose sons are at the jamboree will purchase the 16-page daily paper. More than 100 scouts wil serve on the paper as reporters, photographers, cartoonists and feature writers.

Lieutenant Colonel Beveridge To Retire After 41 Years' Service

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The oldest officer in point of service in the Wisconsin National Guard, a man who has served in four United States army campaigns and won as many medals and decorations for distinguished service as any other National Guard officer, will finish a life time military career this month.

He is Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Byron Beveridge, remembered in Appleton and the Fox River valley as a reporter and newspaper editor in the days before the World War, who has announced his retirement from active duty in the Wisconsin National Guard after 41 years of service.

Colonel Beveridge is retiring in order to accept the position of head of the pension, bonus and rehabilitation division of the adjutant general's department, the post formerly held by the late Gen. George F. O'Connell.

RESIGNS POST

A lifetime of military service, will end this month for Lieutenant Colonel Thomas Byron Beveridge, above, who has resigned to accept a position as head of the pension department at Madison. The lieutenant colonel, who served in four United States army campaigns, was wounded twice and received as many medals and decorations for distinguished service as any other National guard officer.

Started in Appleton

He began his military career in Appleton in 1896 when he enlisted in Company G. of the second Wisconsin infantry on July 4. During the 41 succeeding years of military life he served in Porto Rico as a corporal in the Spanish-American war, in the Mexican border service as a captain and in the World war as a major of the 127th infantry.

As a participant in all four of the major campaigns of the World War, Col. Beveridge was twice wounded He was with the 32nd division. Records in the office of Adj. General Ralph M. Immell here show that he is the holder of 10 medals, including the Croix de Guerre, Purple Heart with clasp, Victory medal with four bars and others.

When he was awarded the Croix de Guerre The French government cited him as follows:

"Having received an order to attack five minutes before the hour set for its execution, he immediately assembled his company commanders on the spot and gave them their orders under fire of the enemy. He was wounded in the course of action."

Leaves For Madison

Col. Beveridge was a resident of Appleton until 1920, and between his periods of active military service worked on the old Appleton Crescent as a reporter, and later as the city editor. He came to Madison when he received his commission as a lieutenant colonel of the Wisconsin National Guard in 1920 and since that time has been associated with the adjutant general's department.

Col. Beveridge has served as acting head of the department, which he will now officially direct since the death of General O'Connell. He explained that appointment to this post was only given to a retired officer, and that this fact prompted his retirement. In his present position he will continue to edit the Wisconsin National Guard Review, which he has headed for the last 14 years, and for which he is now preparing a serial history of the Guard.

Through an unusual quirk of circumstance, Col. Beveridge recently figured in news all over the country when he applied for naturalization papers in Milwaukee.

Seeks Citizenship

He applied for citizenship papers after he discovered that he had spent a life time as a United States military officer as an alien. He was born in Canada and came to the United States at the age of 6.

He explained that he thought his father had become naturalized while he was still a minor and did not learn until recently that his father had obtained only his first papers, and that his naturalization was consequently incomplete.

Had he discovered this fact at the beginning of his military service, it would have hampered his career, for commissioned officers must be citizens of the United States.

Nearly Loses Life

Beveridge came close to being killed on one occasion and losing a leg on another while commanding his battalion in France, according to Dr. W. C. Watkins, who was major surgeon of the 127th Infantry. "At Juvigny he was shot through the body by a machine gun bullet. I treated him when he was carried off the field. Had that shot been a few inches higher he probably would have been buried in France.

"Two weeks prior to that he was struck in the leg by a piece of shell. Instead of going back for surgical treatment he had his adjutant pull out the piece and bandage his leg and remained in the fight. Two days later his battalion led the 32nd division in the attack on Fismes. It was six days after he had been hit that I examined him. Neither his clothes or boots had been off during that time. When I ordered him to remove his boot I found his leg from knee to ankle the color of a tan shoe. Probably nothing but his good physical condition saved that leg."

Simple Home Treatment For Varicose Veins

Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes break. Sufferers are advised to get an original bottle of Emerald Oil at Voigt's Drug Stores, or any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once. A small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush or the finger tips as directed until the swelling is reduced.

So effective is Emerald Oil that it is highly useful in reducing troublesome simple swellings due to strain and hastens their disappearance. — Adv.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

by Esther Tyler

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills attractive Jude Blinshop on a wild, stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. Everyone marooned on this island is suspect: Mike, who talked with Jude alone that night; the Skipper, his tall and tweedy younger aunt; Aunt Martha, stout and prudish; Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart; Higgins, the elderly butler; William, the chauffeur; Cook; Annie, the maid—even I who am Mike's closest friend. Then we discover traces of an outsider, perhaps a maniac, who must be loose in the house. Tired, nervous and fearful, we finally eat.

Chapter 21

WE DARE NOT SLEEP!

"HIGGINS," said M. Farrington, "you may tell Cook that we shall all remain downstairs until she has finished cleaning up. Then I think we may as well retire. You may let us know as soon as you are ready."

"Very well, madam," said Higgins and departed.

"Oh, Lord!" said Gay sleepily. "What time is it?"

Michael glanced at his watch. "Twenty minutes of three." Abruptly a startling thought aroused me. None of us happened to be a murderer, but one of our number had been killed hardly more than 24 hours ago, and we had every reason to believe that a crafty and homicidal maniac lurked somewhere in the house even yet.

"Look here," I said sharply, "we can't fall asleep! It's dangerous!"

They blinked at me. We had had very little sleep the night before and the past 24 hours had been cruelly exhausting. Nothing but action and considerable will power would keep us going for the few hours until daylight.

"Jimmie's right," said the Skipper; but her voice was very thick and her eyes were bleary. I poured more coffee.

"Tell you what," I said. "The back stairs are well blocked off. All the servants are probably in the kitchen. We are sure of this room and the library. He can't get anywhere upstairs except in the halls. Well, half of us can cover the lower hall while the other half goes through the living room, game room and conservatory. Then, if he isn't in any of those, we can all go up the front stairs. The servants can go up the back stairs, and we'll have him."

They were still blinking at me. I could see that I was talking to empty space. My own voice alternately receded from me and bounced back in waves. I dashed my hand on the table.

"We can't sleep! Don't you realize that Jude is dead—that we'll all be dead if we sleep?"

Michael staggered to his feet. "You're right, I suppose," he mumbled, "but — can't seem to feel much."

I played my last trump. Dousing my napkin in icewater, I slapped him on the back of his neck. It worked. His eyes flew open in a flash. With the aid of more icewater and plenty of coffee, our party roused itself, but it was not a pleasant awakening. An atmosphere of tortured nerves shrieking for rest pervaded the room. I don't think I ever felt less like moving. My brain was singing, "Jude—killer—can't sleep" but it attached little or no significance to the words.

'On To The Kill'

We left Mike and Gay at the end of the hall, where they commanded a clear view of the main hall and of the small one leading to the library. The library windows and the hall door and windows were all securely locked. Except for the usual paraphernalia the hall closet was empty. The Skipper, M. Farrington and I explored the living room carefully. The windows were still fastened. Nothing but the scent of roses from the adjacent conservatory. "Can't sleep—can't sleep" went the refrain in my head.

We stepped into the game room. The billiard cues still lay where Jude and Michael had left them. The fire had been dead for hours. Mechanically examining doors and windows, I was seeing Jude—good Heavens! I could feel the pressure of her hand on my arm—see—I let the bolt back into place with a thud.

"On to the kill," said the Skipper, and winced, following the association of her own haphazard words.

Gay and Michael still waited in the hall, half asleep. I stepped quickly into the servants' dining room through the swinging door.

They were all sitting around the kitchen table and they turned rather guiltily at the sound of my voice. Unwashed dishes were scattered over the room, and both rooms were fully lighted, with the window shades drawn.

What the devil had they been talking about? I could not have been eyed more strangely if I had walked in that door for my own funeral.

"We've searched all the other rooms downstairs again," I said. "Our visitor must have gone up through the front hall. All the doors up there are locked. You people go up the back stairs while we go up the front, and we'll have him. Are you a good shot, Higgins?"

The old man's face twitched. "I don't know, sir. I've never—fired the revolver, sir."

"William?"

He hesitated for a second. "Yes."

"Then you take the revolver. Shoot quickly and shoot low—and for God's sake don't miss!" William took the revolver reluctantly. "I'll call when we're ready," I said.

All of my party were waiting for me at the foot of the stairs, Gay and Michael awake at last, their eyes bright with excitement. The Skipper was talking to M. Farrington in a low voice.

"All right," I said. "Now we'll end this damned foolishness for good and all. William has the gun. Mike, you and I will go first. The rest of you stay well behind us, and don't leave the stairs until it's over. Everybody all right?"

The assents were a little hoarse. "Here we go, William!" I bel-

New London—Millers High Lifes drew the Gehrke softball team down into tie for second place in the industrial league when they defeated the hardware team, 9 to 6, in an overtime game under lights at the city ball park last night. White was a bit off form on the Gehrke mound while Ullerich pitched steady ball.

Gehrkes threatened to run away with the game in the second inning when they scored five runs on two triples, a walk and three errors by the High Life infield. Tip Krohn started the spree with his triple and Schultz drove in the last runner with another.

The High Lifes scored one run in the second when White walked Stacy, first man up, but two more were driven in by Eberts in the third when he cracked a 3-bagger, with two men on bases. Batters went down with no count in the next three innings while Gehrkes scored one in the sixth to lead 6-3. A double by Westphal in the seventh never developed.

Millers took White's offerings for three runs in the seventh inning to tie the ball games at 6-all. McIllraith's double pushed several across in that inning. Both sides went down quickly in the eight and the High Lifes, first up in the ninth, started on McDermott's double and converted three more hits into three runs for the winning margin. First three Gehrke batters went out on flies

The two bottom-rung teams, Bordens and Plywood, will play off a postponed game at 7 o'clock tomorrow night prior to the regular Hamilton-Edison encounter. The second game will start about 8:15.

Dr. F. J. Murphy Acquires Five-Gaited Riding Horse

New London— Several additions to the list of New London's riding horses last week have stimulated an interest in horseback riding here as an exercise and a sport.

Last week Dr. F. J. Murphy, New London dentist, acquired a well-trained dark bay thoroughbred, Silver Tip, from Fond du Lac stables. A smaller animal, a former race horse, was secured at Clintonville for his 10-year-old daughter, Glena. Both animals have been exercised daily since, by friends as well as the owners of the horses.

Dr. Murphy's new mount is five-gaited and exceptionally well educated. It has been taught to kneel, respond with a shake of the head, follow its master freely, and even to shake hands.

The two horses acquired by Dr. E. Lyon last year for himself and his son, Robin, have been taken for the summer to the Lyon cottage on the upper Wolf river near Mosquito hill.

Favorite haunts of the riding enthusiasts are the roads and paths in the Hatten Memorial park and the Jennings street road running west into the country.

According to reports, other New London families are considering the keeping of riding horses this summer.

Softball Loop Being Planned At New London

Business and Older Men's League to be Recreational Project

New London — A business and older men's softball league will be organized for enthusiasts in New London at a meeting with R. M. Shortell, city recreation director, at Washington High school next Tuesday evening, the director announced yesterday. At that time the playgrounds and all recreation equipment will be available to prospective players from 6:30 until 8 o'clock. An experiment will be made with a 14-inch ball instead of the usual 12-inch.

The Lions club has indicated it will furnish a team, the director said, and employes at the Edison and Borden plants have expressed a desire for a league more on a par with their capabilities than the present industrial league. All old and young men in the city not playing in the city industrial league will be taken into the new league.

Swim at Pool

For the convenience of laborers who work nights, the swimming pool at Hatten Memorial park will be available to those men every Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning for a charge of 10 cents, it was announced by Shortell. The men also may use the pool each afternoon except Thursday, according to the regular schedule.

A girl attendant was placed in charge of the Lincoln school playground this week to watch over small children. Miss Nelta Leach will be in charge each week day morning, except Saturday, from 9:30 to 11:30. Mothers may leave their children at the playground during those hours. An attempt is being made to have a supervisor at the McKinley school grounds also.

Boys Basketball

Four teams in boys' basketball were organized for the city recreation program this week and play in two divisions will begin at the Washington High school grounds next week. The Senior boys will play at 6:30 Thursday evening and the Juniors from 4 to 5 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

Plan Benefit Dance For Oshkosh Strikers

New London — To aid striking woodworkers at Oshkosh, the New London Furniture Workers local 1642 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America will sponsor a public benefit dance at Labor hall Friday night. Music will be furnished by New London Musicians Local, 300.

About 1,800 men were reported on strike at Oshkosh about six weeks and all proceeds from the dance will be sent to Oshkosh. The Oshkosh locals affected are the Furniture Workers 1724 and Millmens 1363.

A short business meeting of the New London local will be held between 7 and 8 o'clock Friday night prior to the dance.

Hatten Company Cuts Trees Along Tracks

New London — The grove of about 30 trees along County Trunk S just west of the intersection with the Chicago and Northwestern railway within the city has been cut down and cleared this week by employees of the Hatten Lumber company who owns the property. Company officials said the city would continue to fill in the area with rubbish after which it will be used for wood storage purposes. Wood from the trees was sold to Hatten employees who have sawed and carted it away.

Mrs. G. Demming Wins Golf Trophy

Springvale Ladies Have Day's Program at Course Yesterday

New London—Mrs. George Demming won a novel tombstone golf tournament at the ladies day program at Springvale Golf course yesterday afternoon in which 18 players took part. The prize was given for the best epitaph written on a tombstone placard which was placed in the ground by each player at the spot where 36 strokes had been taken. The course par is 36.

Mrs. Harold Zaug "lived" the longest in the tournament, sinking the putt on the sixth hole before reaching 36 strokes. Mrs. J. J. Burns "died" a few yards behind on the same hole. The stunt was planned by Miss Dorothy Stern of the tournament committee.

The epitaph adjudged the winner was: "Here lies the body of Ellen D, she couldn't hit the ball very far from the tee." Honorable mention were those of Mrs. H. H. Helms, "Here lies the body of Ervie Helms, we hope she's gone to the heavenly realm"; Mrs. Rudd Smith, "Here lies the body of Irith Thmith, who says she'll never again do thith"; and Mrs. Burns, "Here lies the body of Thoebe Burns, died to make a meal for the little earth worms." The tombstone placards were gathered from the course and will be available to members of the club for examination next week.

Mrs. Fay R. Smith won the prize at bridge. Mrs. F. E. Lowell, Round Lake, Ill., was a guest of the club. Mrs. Harold Zaug was chairman of the committee in charge of the event.

Venetian Night, Boat Parade to Feature Program

Legion Post Planning Celebration at New London, July 3 to 5

New London—A Venetian night boat parade and a colorful sham battle between gunboats and warship, enacted by members of the New London Boat club, Inc., will be the highlights of the annual homecoming celebration of the American Legion Norris-Spencer post on July 3, 4 and 5 this year. Final arrangements for the nocturnal fireworks display on the Wolf river were completed this week.

The program on the evening of Sunday, July, 4, will consist of an illuminated parade, lavishly exceeding the event held for the Labor day celebration last year, according to club members. All available boats of the club will be decorated with assorted red and green flares, shells will be fired from cannons mounted on the boat decks, and an assortment of candle flares will light up the north side of the river bank to form a background for the parade.

The battle between the warship and gunboats will be staged Monday evening, July 5. A dummy warship will be built on a dock anchored in the middle of the Wolf river and boats of club members will be disguised as gunboats. Fireworks will be used freely, with assorted flares and cannon-fire lending the atmosphere of bottle. Flares also will decorate the river bank during the scene.

The Legion is planning one of the greatest homecomings events in years since this is the first year it will be held on the Fourth of July instead of Labor day in September. About 15 manufacturers in the city have agreed to furnish major prizes for various purposes. There will be contests and concessions of all kinds and WLS entertainers from Chicago will be featured during the day and evening. The Legion committee in charge is seeking new and better rides at the American Legion clubhouse grounds this year.

UPROOT TREE

Workmen yesterday completed uprooting a large tree on the north side of the Appleton Post office building. Parts of the tree had rotted and falling boughs were a hazard to pedestrians, according to Stephen D. Balliet, postmaster.

Twin Cities Ball Teams to Clash In Doubleheader

Merchants and Eagles of Valley League Scheduled in Two Games

Neenah—Athletic rivalry between Neenah and Menasha will come to the fore when the Neenah Merchants and the Menasha Eagles tangle in a doubleheader at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Washington park.

Whether it be football, basketball or baseball, nothing gives citizens of either town greater satisfaction than to best the sister city and the double bill Sunday afternoon will prove no exception. Both teams have been going through stiff practice sessions this week in anticipation of a real battle.

Neenah is favored because of its higher standing in Northern Valley league rankings and a win over Grand Chute, 3-2, last Sunday while Menasha was losing a tough game to the Oshkosh Cabs, 8-7. The Merchants are in second place and the Eagles are in third.

Both squads realize the outcome will have a definite effect upon the pennant race and neither will be any too willing to bow out at the hands of a deadly rival. Orv Schultz, who has been grooving them over the plate, will probably get the mound assignment for the first game and Robert "Lefty" Jerome will hold the fort during the second encounter. Both games will be nine innings in length and booster tickets are now being sold

New Moratorium Plan Presented at Madison

Madison—(P)—Administration advisors came forward today with a compromise mortgage moratorium plan.

One is that county mediation boards shall continue as now constituted and that the state farm and home credit administration shall be represented on the boards only in an advisory capacity instead of controlling one membership on each board.

The second concession wipes out the provision that the period for redeeming foreclosed property automatically be extended for two years and requires the debtor to show cause from year to year why he should be granted an extension, as is now the case.

LaFollette Signs Measure Permitting Free Rail Passes

Madison —(P)—Governor LaFollette signed into law today a bill carrying out the mandate of the voters that the holder of a public office for which the salary is less than $300 a year may use free railroad passes.

An appropriation of $1,500 to index the statutes.

Limiting the publication of new motor vehicle registrations by the secretary of state to once every 45 days except to police officials, who will receive daily reports.

Requiring 25 per cent franchise tax on music brokers' gross receipts for public rendition of copyrighted musical numbers.

'Return to Reason' Urged at Marquette Graduation Fetes

Milwaukee —(P)— Dr. Ross J. S. Hoffman, New York university historian, told Marquette university graduates last night "we live in a world that has raised up a mad, barbaric protest against objective reality and the primacy of reason in human life."

"Feelings, appetites and irrational wills are running riot," he said in his commencement address, "and it is this which underlies all world disorder, the insane nationalism, the class warfare, the social anarchy. . . ."

Expressing a need for a return again to reason and universality, Dr. Hoffman said: "At no time in modern history has there been so great a need as at present for a generation of human beings capable of regarding the world with a calm objectivity, of bringing will into obedience to reason, of taking hold upon truth with resolute certainty and of placing the mind in contact with things universal."

An honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on Dr. Hoffman and certificates of distinctive civic service on Miss Dorothy E. Enderis, director of Milwaukee municipal recreation and adult education, and Rudy Matthews, chairman of the 1936 Milwaukee community fund campaign.

Warn Swimmers to Watch Out for 'Athlete's Foot'

Madison—Watch out when swimming this summer for the constant invader, "athlete's foot," is the warning given by the State Medical Society in its weekly health bulletin.

"Swimmers very often suffer from 'athlete's foot' as a result of infection picked up on the springboard or runway. Following a swim a shower should be taken and if possible the feet should be put in a sterilizing solution to prevent infection from developing between the toes.

Where It's Found

"In bathhouses, clubs, gymnasiums, bedrooms, and even on bathmats this source of infection may be found, and some protective covering such as wooden sandals should be worn on the feet to prevent the possibility of this infection. Most modern gymnasiums require persons using the showers to wear these sandals during and after the bath. Bath-mats may also be a source of infection and should not be used. It is far safer to stand on a newspaper after stepping out of the bath. The ordinary laundering of towels is not sufficient to destroy the germs; towels should be boiled or sterilized with steam.

"While the disease is generally known as 'athlete's foot,' scientifically it has many names. It is a ring-worm disease of the feet caused by infection due to a so-called fungus growth, which is a vegetable parasite of the yeast family and similar to that which causes mold on bread. These forms of vegetable life develop and grow rapidly in warm and moist places and hence the areas between the toes provide the ideal place for them.

How to Prevent

"In preventing infection on the feet the frequent use of soap and water, followed by thorough drying and a daily change of stockings, is important.

"The most common signs by which 'athlete's foot' may be recognized are:

1. The skin may become rough, cracked and oftentimes soggy between the toes, particularly the fourth and fifth toes.
2. Little water blisters, frequently extremely itchy and leaving a raw surface when they burst, may form around the toes.
3. Less commonly, there may be thickening and piling up of skin to form callosities on the soles of the feet. Should the disease become well-established it may produce an eczema-like reaction on the feet or even on distant parts of the body, such as the hands, groin, armpits, and nails.

"Remembered to keep the feet well-protected in a public bathhouse, gymnasium, or club, and be sure to wash them thoroughly, if possible in a sterilizing solution, to prevent the disease called 'athlete's foot.'"

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood— "Hell!" said Olivia De Haviland. And a short time later, "Damn!" she said.

But the interviewer, except for a slight gasp at the "Hell" and another at the "Damn," was unperturbed when his story came out. It recorded neither expression as coming from fair Olivia's lips. It mentioned her youth, her beauty, her sweetness and innocence and let it go at that.

When Olivia asked him later what he thought of her new vocabularly, he merely grinned. Olivia's swear-words, you see, weren't convincing. Olivia was disappointed, because she'd meant them to be.

Like many another sweet young thing who fears her personality is causing her to be "typed," Olivia had decided on stern measures. When you press her for an explanation of her timid "Hell" and "Damn," she gives it freely: too much "sweetness and light" in the stories written about her.

"I believed there ought to be some spice in them, too, just a little harmless spice. So I said the naughty words and tried to make them come out naturally," she says.

Maybe some day when the girl plays an unpleasant role she'll be able to get away with "spice," but not until then.

Olivia hasn't been alone in wanting to change her type. Satisfied with her as she is, the studio early in her career experimented with her in still pictures. They had her put on the most clinging black silk dress available, one that would have suited a Harlow or a Crawford. They made her up heavily with lashes that should have given that come-hither look. They posed her in "voluptuous" poses and they took many pictures.

But in all of them Olivia looked like a sweet little girl who was "dressing up" in mama's things and trying to look wicked. The poses intended to look gay and abandoned jelled into pictures of Olivia De Haviland trying to look gay and abandoned.

Olivia liked the pictures no better than the studio did. The studio continued to put her into sweet girl roles in costume pictures, in which she could wear dainty frills and act herself. It put her into "Call It A Day" in much the same sort of role —and the places where she went wrong in it were those at which she didn't act herself but tried to act.

So for the present "that sweet De Haviland girl" will have to realize that she really is sweet. Timid hells and damns to the contrary, she'll never fool us.

Tin Can Tourists Will Gather at Keshena in August

Expect From 800 to 1,000 House Trailers to Meet

BY CARL W. MASON

Shawano, Wis. — Hundreds of house trailers and other camping outfits will throng the Menominee Indian reservation at Keshena when the Tin Can Tourists of the World hold their annual summer convention Aug. 2 to 8 on the Menominee Indian fair grounds a few hundred feet from the village which is the center of this red men's domain. The Menominee Indian Fair association, with PWA help, is laying out an elaborate and completely equipped trailer city in this primitive section of Wisconsin and will provide accomodations for from 800 to 1,000 individual camps on the fairgrounds and on adjacent lands that have been secured to take care of any overflow of visitors that may develop. Substantial work is being done as it is intended this camp shall be a permanent institution that will continue to attract numerous visitors in succeeding years. Tin Canners from all over the United States and even from other countries are expected at this year's Keshena gathering. Elaborate programs of entertainment are projected.

The 14-acre fairgrounds are being largely overhauled. New streets are being laid out and graded, stumps etc removed, ground leveled and preparations made to place 700 camps on the fairgrounds alone, including shaded sections at the sides and also on the open race track and its central enclosure. The areas are being platted into lots each 25 feet square for an individual camp. New electric wire lines are being built so that every camp will have convenient electrical connections. Two new deep wells are to be bored and equipped with pressure tanks so that abundant pure water may be available thruout the camp by a network of new pipe lines. Numerous garbage cans with removal each morning will contribute to the sanitary perfection of the new camp, arrangements for which are being perfected by the Wisconsin State Board of Health in cooperation with the United States Public Health Service, planned according to federal specifications. Several large toilets are being constructed at different points on the grounds and these will be up to date in every particular.

Weekly Fee

A charge of $1.50 a week for each camp will be made, this fee covering parking, electric current, water and all conveniences of the trailer city. The 40 by 50 foot dance hall on the fairgrounds will be available for the general meetings, dances and other social functions.

Other fair buildings also will be open for use. New platforms for entertainments are to be erected in front of the regular grandstand and special lighting facilities will be provided there. While the Tin Can organization will furnish much of its own program material from the abundant entertaining talent among its own members as in the past, the Indian fair association will make important contributions of its own as well. Indian dances and ceremonials will be noteworthy features. There will be the fine 30-piece all Indian band in costume and the Indian dance orchestra of 10 or 12 pieces. Indians are also expected to bring in displays of their interesting art and handicraft work and to conduct stands for the exhibition and sale of these articles during the convention.

Plan Displays

Near St Joseph's Indian Mission School at Keshena an area is being arranged for an extensive display of factory models of various trailers and housecars. At least 30 manufacturers are expected to exhibit in this section which will show all the latest advances and improved devices in trailer building and equipment. The Shawano, Wis., Chamber of Commerce is handling this exhibit and is cooperating generally with the Indian fair association. All inquiries regarding the convention are being handled by the Shawano chamber and anyone wishing detailed information should write to the Shawano body.

The camp grounds will be ready for tourists by the latter part of July and many are expected to go there at the earliest opportunity. In fact the vanguard of Tin Canners has already arrived. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Harrison of George arrived June 3 and are at present camping in their trailer at North Beach on Shawano lake awaiting the opening of the Keshena camp. They are members of the T. C. T., attended the winter convention at Sarasota, Fla., and are the first visitors from a distance to reach the scene of the summer assemblage.

Expect Visitors

Hundreds of visitors are expected to inhabit the camp both before the convention opens and for some time after. In addition to the usual camp programs, sports, dances, card parties, business sessions, reunions, etc., there will be plenty of unique interests available in and around Keshena to divert the visitors. The presence of many Indians and extensive samples of their work together with the general Indian atmosphere will be a novel experience for large numbers of campers. In the 10 townships with 360 square miles of land in the reservation dwell 2,150 regular members of the Menominee tribe. Besides these are others of partial blood not regularly enrolled. Even Superintendent Ralph Fredenberg of the reservation is a part-blood Menominee, born on the Menominee lands and a life-long resident there. He is a graduate of the famous Haskell Indian Institute in Kansas and is an able and interesting man. Northwest of Neopit is a group of pagan Menominees, 50 or 60 persons living in the Zoar settlement and retaining their ancient pagan religion and ceremonials. They live in log cabins and make handsome specimens of bead work, moccasins and other Indian craft goods.

Indian Sawmill

At Neopit visitors may see the Indian sawmill, all electric and one of the largest white pine mills in the middle west. It is operated largely by the Indians and its profits accrue to the tribe.

Near Big Smoky Falls on the Wolf river is a private trout hatchery with about 25,000 fish in the pools and where anglers may catch speckled beauties at $1 a pound. Billy Alf also has a lodge and private hatchery with similar fishing fees on Highway 55 just north of the reservation. Visitors are not allowed to fish on the reservation but they may ply the sport in the Wolf and other streams north of the reservation and in nearby Shawano lake with its extensive resorts, beaches, summer colonies, boating, swimming, golf, horseback riding, etc.

Still other attractions available to the Tin Canners will be Keshena Falls where young Chief Oshkosh shoots the falls in a canoe, Big Smoky Falls, Sullivan's Falls, Bear Trap Falls, White Water Falls, Big Eddy Falls, the Dells of the Wolf, Burnt Shanty Rips, shops with Indian bead work and other articles for sale, about three dozen pretty, spring-fed lakes in the southeast corner of the reservation five or six miles from Keshena, the Indian agency building, the forest ranger station and lookout towers, the various Indian schools at Keshena and also the large Indian Catholic church there, long a mecca for visitors. Most of the Menominees are Catholics and have been under the tutelage of the Franciscan order since about 1830 when the tribe still lived on the shores of Green bay, continuing since removal to the reservation in 1854.

The famous Indian Fair, the only institution of the kind in this part of the world, will be held on the grounds early in September, including Labor Day. This fair has been in existence for 21 years and numerous trailer tourists are expected to remain at Keshena for this event so soon following the convention.

Rohan Opposed to Bill Licensing Livestock Dealers

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison— Assemblyman William Rohan, outspoken Kaukauna Democrat, yesterday admonished the legislature to "let the farmers alone," for, he said, "they aren't so dumb."

Rohan took the floor during debate Wednesday to oppose a bill by the farmers' joint legislative committee which would provide for the bonding and licensing of buyers and dealers in livestock. Proponents of the measure, led by Assemblyman Arthur Hill of Alma, argued that unscrupulous cattle buyers are imposing on the gullibility of farmers and are frequently guilty of fraud in their dealings with the livestock producer.

Said Rohan: "The farmers in some northern counties may be dumb enough to take rubber checks, but in my county they aren't. We don't want any more snoopers around our farms. We have investigators there every morning now, and this bill will simply make more jobs in the department of agriculture and markets."

The bill is too drastic, anyway, Rohan concluded. Under its terms "I wouldn't be able to buy a cow from my neighbor and to sell it without coming to Madison to get a license from the department of agriculture and markets."

Relief Fund Hearing Is Postponed at Capitol

Madison — (P)—The senate battle over passage of the Wisconsin development authority bill, which kept the chamber in session until a late hour yesterday, resulted in postponement of the finance committee hearing on a relief appropriation for northern Wisconsin.

Senator Philip Nelson (R), Maple, author of the bill to allow 28 counties $750,000 for unpaid relief bills, was unable to appear before the committee.

Sit-Down Strike Is Threatened in Mahoning Valley

idle in a strike called by the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee to enforce demands for signed contracts covering wages, hours and working conditions.

The strike is directed against the Republic Steel corporation, Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., Inland Steel, and the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Before President Roosevelt today were appeals from Mayor Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, and Governor Martin L. Davey of Ohio, who failed to bring the union and corporations together.

"The matter has gone way beyond the powers and opportunities of one state to deal with it." Governor Martin Davey telegraphed the president.

Asks Intervention

"Therefore I request you most earnestly to intervene on behalf of the federal government and undertake in such manner as you may deem best to find some basis on which this costly and threatening strike can be settled."

Thus, with a governor, a mayor and a strike leader all petitioning for intervention, the $750,000-a-day strike had twisted itself today into a question mark that pointed toward Washington.

"Save our homes by discouraging Mr. John L. Lewis against such un-Americanisms," the mayor's telegram said.

The Davey telegram suggested that Mr. Roosevelt "might find it advisable to call a conference of the interested parties, or set up the machinery by which the opposing points of view may be reconciled."

The governor is deeply concerned because forty or more thousands of Ohio workers were starting today their fourth week of idleness, due to the shutting down—because of the strike—of plants of Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel.

"Back to work" movements in Youngstown thus far have been unsuccessful. Their leaders were told by President Frank Purnell of Youngstown Sheet and Tube yesterday that the plants could not be opened until there was solid assurance that lives and property would be protected by the authorities.

Bethlehem Steel's quick "no" to a C. I. O. proposal for an exclusive bargaining agency vote among the 15,000 workers of its Cambria works in Johnstown, was accompanied by the charge that C. I. O. had brought "disorder and anarchy" to the city.

That there has been violence, none denied. Yesterday's dynamite explosion at a gate of the Cambria works and the subsequent stabbing of two pickets by a Negro who said he was the father of 11 children "and had to go to work," attested to that.

Picket Critically Hurt

The man, Thomas Sims, was held on a charge of disorderly conduct and suspicion. One of the victims of the stabbings, Joseph Mechrig — a "captain of pickets"—lay critically injured at a hospital, with 24 stitches closing the knife wound in his breast.

Johnstown now has a civilian "army" of 400 men, in addition to the regular police force and the 200 state policemen sent in by Governor George H. Earle.

There has risen opposition, however, to the mayor's plan to enroll 3,000 American Legionnaires for the preservation of order.

At Indianapolis, Harry W. Colmery, national commander of the American Legion, said the legion "is not a strike-breaking organization."

"Any citizen may be deputized for police duty in an emergency," he said. "Legionnaires are not exceptions to this provision. But when legionnaires are so deputized, . . . it must be clearly understood that they are thus serving in their capacities as citizens, and not because they are legionnaires."

Law-Order League

The problem of the preservation of peace in strike-affected communities has been met in various ways — by vigilantes, state police and even—as at Monroe, Mich., last Sunday—by calling out troops.

At Lansing, Mich., the formation of a "law and order league" was announced yesterday in full page newspaper advertisements. A membership of 12,000 already is claimed for it. The announced purposes of the league are to assist in "strict enforcement of existing laws," to supply enforcement agencies with volunteer personnel, and "to uphold the courts by the assurance that due process of law shall not be interrupted."

Carry Baseball Bats

Bay City, Mich., authorities solved the peace problem last night with baseball bats which they provided for use by 53 special police who were sent to see that no violence occurred at the Bay Manufacturing Co., a subsidiary of the Electric Auto-Lite Co.

Homer Martin, international president of the United Automobile Workers' union—a C. I. O. organization—announced today after an all-night conference that a settlement had been reached with officials of the company, and that the men would return to work at once. Announcement of the terms was delayed.

The agreement averted a threatened "labor holiday" in Bay City. The union had sought a bargaining contract—the same point of dispute which brought about the steel strike.

QUESTIONED IN PARSONS CASE

The story of George Winfield, Negro garbage collector, that he was told to stay out of the cellar at the home of the missing Mrs. Alice McDonell Parsons on the day she disappeared caused department of justice agents to question the Negro: his employer, Arnold Cox (right); and Alvin Chadwick (center), who drove the truck on which Winfield was working.

Owners of Crack Dairy Herds Get Certificates

National Dairy association honor roll certificates for 15 members of the Black Creek-Cicero Herd Improvement association, showing that cows in their herds averaged 300 or more pounds of butterfat during the last year, have been received at the office of R. C. Swanson, county agent.

Red seal certicates, showing an average production of from 350 to 400 pounds, will go to four members of the association, Rueben Thiel, Seymour; Charles Wussow, Ray Daniels and Emil Barth, Black Creek.

Green seal certificates for herds averaging 300 to 400 pounds will go to Nick Rettler, George Stingle, Herman Wussow, Loren Anderson, William Sigl, Henry Dietrich, Herman Miller and Son, Joseph Utschig, Emil Mueller, Guy Daniels and Emil Gosse.

Five Associations

Announcing receipt of the awards Swanson pointed out that there are five active cow testing associations in Outagamie county with a possibility that a sixth will be formed soon. Farmers in these associations, he said, are meeting the low prices of butter fat and the high cost of feed by maintaining herds of high production, resulting in greater profit.

Approximately 150 herds in the county now are owned by members of cow testing associations. Men with agricultural short course training or previous cow testing association experience act as testers. William Yonkman is tester for the Black Creek-Cicero association, Donald Decker for one of the Holstein associations, Leonard Eggleston for the other, Palmer Gums for the Guernsey association and Elmer Haferbecker for the newest of the five organizations in the county.

Players Asked to Use Tennis Shoes on Courts

Tennis players today were asked by Harold Jerke, park superintendent, to use tennis shoes when playing on the park courts. Leather shoes may mar the surface of the courts and cause irregularities that will spoil play, he said.

CONCRETE PAVEMENT ENDS

For Safety's sake
PAVE THE GAPS WITH Concrete

Why do state highway departments warn the public: "Concrete pavement ends"?

Because it is universally accepted that speeds which are reasonable and safe on concrete become dangerous on other surfaces.

To save lives, to prevent accidents . . . demand concrete all the way.

True and even, it has no high crown—is usable to its full width. Brakes are at their best on its gritty non-skid surface. Its light gray color and sharply defined edges give high visibility at night. Any car is a better car on concrete.

And concrete saves money for motorists and for taxpayers. Insist on concrete for your roads.

Oil Mat Project At Waupaca Wins Council Approval

Aldermen to Meet June 30 To Act on Many License Applications

Waupaca—Street improvements, applications for malt, liquor soft drinks and cigaret licenses and purchase of a new city truck were the principal matters considered Tuesday evening at the meeting of the common council.

A letter to Irving Erickson, Third ward alderman, from E. E. Browne, property owner, regarding the widening and improving of the road beyond the depot going toward the slaughter house, was read and referred to the board of public works.

The following expenses for the last half month were then allowed: pay roll for the city hall, $124.16; general labor, $237.90; water works pay roll, $66.70; relief department, $156.00.

The council then approved the report of the board of public works, composed of Aldermen Torsell, Looker, and Weatherbee, regarding the selection of the lowest bidder on a half to three-quarter ton truck to be bought and used by the city. The lowest bid had been advanced by Waupaca Motor Sales on a demonstration Chevrolet truck.

The council's approval was given to the recommendation made by the board of public works that Simcox street be paved by a turnover process.

A resolution was adopted for oil mat improvement on Center, Harrison, Franklin, Session, Oborn, N. Division, Washington, Pine, Oak and Ware streets. These streets include all those north of the river which will not be torn up this summer in sewer construction and many streets which have petitioned for improvement.

Estimated Costs

By buying the materials for so many streets at the same time, considerable money would be saved, the entire cost being estimated at $2,600, of which the city itself will share $500, the rest being financed by assessments and damages; 14,000 feet or about two and two-thirds miles are included in this project. Abstracts will be ordered. Cost of oil, approximately $8 per running foot, and sand, 2½ cents per foot, will be charged to property owners, and the city will finance their application.

It was voted to allow the city Boy Scouts $14, the cost of the license for the operation of the Kaarup Rides which the scouts have been sponsoring for the last week. This was done instead of exempting them from a license, it being considered a better policy to have the Boy Scouts pay the fee than to waive the license entirely.

The letter from Harry Rawson, president of the board of education, was read. It suggested the purchase of three-quarters of an acre of land belonging to the Wakefield estate which adjoins the school grounds; the area then would be used as playground. The letter was referred to the board of public works.

License Applications

Applications for the following licenses were then read:

Retail Class A, intoxicating liquors—E. J. Wrolstad, Milton Laux; retail Class B of the same — Earl Jenney, W. N. Simpson, David Behm, George Hanson, Clarence Parish, N. J. Nelson, S. A. Mason, O. N. Fredrickson, pharmacist, intoxicating liquors—Helen Stedman and F. O. Stratton.

IT'S THE TRUTH

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE WAS NOT SIGNED ON JULY 4, 1776!

But . . . The Letter Below Has Just Been Signed By Mr. Harry Coppens, of Coppens' Shoe Rebuilders, 119 E. College Ave., Appleton, An Enthusiastic New Oldsmobile Owner:

June 15, 1937.

H. R. Dutcher Motor Co.,
Appleton, Wis.

Gentlemen:

I cannot begin to put in words how much I appreciate the luxurious comfort and performance of my new 1937 Oldsmobile "6". There are not enough words to express my appreciation for this car, the finest of all motor cars.

My gas mileage on this car is always over 17½ miles per gallon, up to 70 miles per hour. The riding, my friends tell me, is like floating on air. The worst roads are smooth when you ride in an Oldsmobile. I have owned several other cars but none can compare with my Oldsmobile.

The service in your shop is 100%. I have never had it better. Your shop foreman is the finest man you could get for the job.

Sincerely,
(Signed) HARRY COPPENS

Chicago Wheat Losses Erased In Late Trading

Earlier Downturns Associated With Reports of Rains in Canada

Chicago—(AP)—Late rallies of Chicago wheat prices today more than overcame earlier shop downturns that were associated with reports of rains in Canada.

Unwelcome heavy rains in Kansas and Oklahoma were announced as delaying harvest and it was asserted in some quarters that the Canadian rains had proved to be of an unimportant character. There were also late estimates that considerable Canadian wheat had been taken today for export, and that 20 loads of domestic winter wheat had likewise been bought for Europe.

At the close, wheat was ⅛ off to ⅜ up compared with yesterday's finish, July 1.10-10¼, Sept. 1.09⅝-1.10, corn ⅜-⅞ advanced, July 1.12½, Sept. 1.00-1.00¼, and oats varying from ¼ decline to ⅜ gain.

Most Federal Loans In Upward Tendency

New York—(AP)—Most U. S. government loans showed an inclination to extend a rally today but the rank and file of corporate issues lagged in late trading, with numerous losses of fractions to a point or more.

Bond men were encouraged by prospect of a truce in the steel strike on news of appointment of a federal mediation board. However, buying remained rather restricted in most sections.

Southern Pacific Has Decrease in Income

New York —(AP)— Southern Pacific Co., the first large rail system to report for May, today disclosed net operating income of $1,023,197, a decrease of $206,584 as compared with May, 1936. Gross revenues, however, were up $2,735,925.

Net operating income for the first five months was $9,475,960 an increase of $2,969,231. Gross was $92,403,829, an increase of $12,733,745.

New Yrok —(AP)— After an early relapse steels rebounded in today's stock market following appointment of a federal mediation board which will seek to establish peace in the major labor controversy.

A heavy selling wave hit the list in the morning, with numerous leaders tumbling fractions to 3 or more points at the worst.

Prices stepped up brisky, however, when it was learned steps had been taken by the administration to break the steel strike deadlock. The upward reversal was not a one-way affair, though, and at the close many stocks were still under water.

Transfers were around 1,300,000 shares.

In the forward tilt were shares of U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Inland Steel, American Rolling Mill, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodrich, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Electric Power and Light, Homestake Mining, Kennecott, Westinghouse, General Electric, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Southern Pacific, Johns-Manville, U. S. Rubber, Auburn, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Du Pont, Celanese, and Container Corp.

Advancing Costs Create Problem for Newspapers

Milwaukee — (AP)—The matter of increasing newspaper circulation rates to meet soaring prices, the International Circulation Managers' association convention was told Wednesday, is a problem the managements must deal with individually.

E. R. Hatten of the Detroit Free Press, said the cost of print paper, ink, wrapping paper, twine, wire and other supplies is going up, but added he was not making a plain statement for price raising.

The Progressives held open the second roll call on passage for two hours and then moved to take up other legislation.

At 4 o'clock the absentees walked in, announced they had lunched, and Senator Harry Bolens, (D), Port Washington, one of their leaders, said, "I refreshed myself without your consent, and now I'm ready to work all night if you want to stay here."

The roll call on final passage, which came at 4:37 p. m., follows:

For the bill—Progressives, Anderson, Busby, Cashman, Engebretson, Hampel, Ingram, Kannenberg, Kresky, Leverich, McDermid, Panzer, Paulson, Risser, Rush; Nelson, Republican; Zimny, Democrat—16.

Against the bill—Democrats, Bolens, Callan, Clancy, Dempsey, Galasinski, Morrissey, Sauld, Schoenecker; Republicans, Coakley, Duel, Mack, Roethe, Shearer, White—14.

Absent—Rowlands (P).

At the close of the session Progressives announced they had obtained 17 signatures to a resolution charging that "power trust representatives" ordered the opposition senators "like cattle" to stage their disappearances.

The bill designates the WDA as a state agency to promote rural electrification cooperatives, municipal power districts and municipally-owned power plants. The WDA articles of incorporation as a non-profit corporation also provide for ultimate ownership of utilities.

Amendments adopted by the senate limit the WDA to "activities in connection with" utilities, forbid it to venture into the telephone business and remove any responsibility from the state for debts of the corporation.

Act to Restrain Wausau A. F. of L.

Machinists' Officers Must Show Cause Why Injunction Should Not be Granted

Wausau—(AP)—Circuit Judge A. H. Reid signed an order yesterday commanding officers of the American Federation of Labor Machinists' union, the heads of the Wausau Central Labor body and about 15 pickets to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be granted restraining them from interfering with the plant operations of the Marathon Electric Manufacturing corporation.

The injunction is sought jointly by the company and employes affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, a rival union group.

The complaint alleges that the pickets have interfered with the shipment of finished goods and raw materials from the plant.

The C. I. O. won a plant election last Friday, 268-101 under the direction of the state labor relations board.

Eldon J. Melvin, president of the Wausau Central Labor body, said the walkout had not been sanctioned by the A. F. of L. He termed it a "runaway" strike.

Board of Three Named to Settle Steel Disputes that the four steel companies had entered "an unholy alliance to flout all laws" in their effort to avoid collective bargaining with their employes.

"In dozens of local communities these steel barons have created armed camps where any act of violence on the part of their agents, including wholesale murder of innocent and defenseless workers can occur with impunity and without obligation to account to the law," said Murray, who is chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee.

Murray testified at a preliminary investigation of the steel strike by the post office committee. The inquiry was prompted by charges of interference with the mails.

Murray asserted there should be an immediate and thorough investigation of the steel corporations' policies in the strike.

"In this connection, such investigation should not stop at merely subpenaing the lower officials of the steel corporation. Tom Girdler, Harry Dalton, the Block brothers and Eugene Grace, the diehards who are behind the present strike, should be subpenaed and investigated and made fully responsible for all the vicious and illegal acts that have been permitted by their corporations and agents."

The men he named are high officials of the four companies involved in the strike — Republic Steel corporation, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, Inland Steel company and Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Murray alleged wholesale violation of the national labor relations act by all four companies.

The other side of the controversy between the steel companies and their workers was to be brought to the committee by a group of witnesses headed by Louis Guarnieri, spokesman for Republic.

lowed, and pelted up those steps as fast as I could go. Ridiculous how interminable that short climb seemed! M. Farrington was puffing behind me and Mike was at my side.

He panted, "Should have kept the gun yourself!"

"Can't shoot and neither can you!" I hissed just as the first view of the hall came into sight. At the head of the stairs we drew up with a jerk. Nothing! The hall was empty. Seven closed doors stared us in the face, and the key to each one of them lay in my own pocket. We stood straining our ears for sounds of a struggle in the other corridor. Then the door of the servants' quarters began to swing slowly toward us.

Locked, Every Door

I have never seen a door move so slowly. Through it tiptoed William, revolver in hand, and behind him came Higgins. Someone on the stairs gasped and then there was silence. I moved.

"The doors," I said. "Try them."

People were rushing up from the stairs, in from the corridor. Frantically we were tugging on locked doors, expecting them to open. None of them did. I tried them all myself, from one end of the hall to the other and even out into the smaller corridor. Locked, every one of them.

It was William who had one last gleam of hope. "Your keys, sir," he jerked. "Have you got 'em all?"

I drew the keys out and counted them. Ten. I counted the bedrooms. Six and four more in the servants' hall. One by one I unlocked those rooms and searched them. The light still burned beside Jude Blinshop's bed, but aside from the still figure under the sheet there was nothing there. I relocked that door last and went back into the hall.

"It's impossible!" I said. "Someone certainly struck me. It might have been William, but I couldn't have struck William, and — and someone did."

"The cellar," Gay said suddenly. "There must be a cellar."

There was, but it was inconceivable that Jude's murderer was down there — not unless he was a magician — and then some. Nevertheless, I rushed down the narrow stairs again. At the foot of them, a sudden idea pulled me up short. The cellar door at the Bluff is outside the house in the little entryway off the kitchen where I picked up Michael's handkerchief. I myself had locked the door leading from that entry into the kitchen. In one bound I was at that door. It was locked and the key was where I had left it—on the inside of the door. Turning the key, I threw the door open on an empty entryway. The cellar door was bolted. I whirled back into the kitchen, relocking the door.

"Skipper," I said, "think carefully. Is there any other entrance from the cellar into the house?"

I nodded. No one else had anything to offer. Over and over in the back of my head I was mulling the chances of William's having thrown himself down the stairs as a blind to start us hunting for a nonexistent marauder. Possible, of course. Probable? From the direction of the main hall, we could hear muffled sounds of the servants on the front stairs.

In the living room I sank uncomfortably into a deep chair and studied a section of the rug pattern.

"The only trouble, Jim," said the Skipper quietly, "is that our friend is not in the cellar. The cat was all right when Martha and I came downstairs. He couldn't have been touched much before Cook screamed. And no one had time to mutilate that cat and make his exit down the back stairs before we got to the kitchen. No one went out the front door—unless he bolted it after him on the inside!"

"But, Skipper—" I began, when a warning look from her stopped me.

Kaukauna Gets New Police and Fire Commission

Gerharz and Schmalz Retained; Three New Men are Named

Kaukauna—Mayor John Niesen named a brand new fire and police commission last night, composed of two veterans and three newcomers, after telling the council at a special session that the old one and many more before had been appointed illegally, according to an opinion delivered Tuesday by Attorney-General O. Loomis at Madison

Loomis made his ruling before Mayor John Niesen, Mike Gerharz, chairman, and Police Chief James McFadden who motored to the state capital to confer with him.

Because the council had not confirmed appointees each time, the secretary of the commission and city clerk had not been notified in writing, and for several other reasons, Kaukauna fire and police commissions for at least 20 years back have served without authority of legal appointment.

As acting bodies, however, they were eligible to perform the duties which they have undertaken, according to Mayor Niesen's interpretation of Loomis's ruling

Mayor Niesen retained Mike Gerharz as acting chairman of the new commission and A. M. Schmalz, member of the former one. The three new men he appointed are Joseph Nushart, Walter Lucht, and John Rink.

Gantter Replaced

These three men displace Art Kromer, William Breier, and William Gantter from the old commission. Gantter served as secretary.

Left off the new body are Charles Curry and Jacob Miller whose appointments some time ago started the dispute over the legality in the method of forming commissions. Neither of these two men, however, have acted officially.

Now that the legal problems have been unravelled, a commission appointed with council confirmation, and the proper notification made, Mike Gerharz, acting chairman, said last night that a meeting would be called within the next few days to select two new police officers.

Convening a week ago for that purpose, the commission adjourned without taking any action after Mayor Niesen requested them by letter to wait until a conference with the attorney general was held.

The additional two men will be added to the police force in compliance with the state law requiring city law enforcement officers to be placed on 8-hour work schedules. Over 75 applications for the jobs have been received by the fire and police commission, according to Gerharz.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. Don Anderson is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Conservation Group to Plan Public Program

Kaukauna —A special meeting of the Kaukauna Conservation Club will be held at the gun club next Thursday afternoon, June 24. Lunch and refreshments will be served at 5.30.

The committee for the event is composed of Carl Engerson, chairman, Carl Anderson, Ben Faust, Art Sager, Harvey Mau, Frank Huss, Otto Trettin, Jack Zeuhl, Walter Specht, Louis Miller, and Tony Rieth. Tickets were issued yesterday.

Percy Chamberlain, secretary of the club, said yesterday that members of the gun club, many of whom are also in the conservation group, have agreed to hold trapshooting during the afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock, for the entertainment of those attending the meeting. Gun club members not in the Conservation club will be invited to join the session.

The date for the trip to the state game farm at Poynett will be settled at next Thursday's meeting. It is planned to make this an annual affair. Also up for discussion will be proposed a day's outing for the public at one of the nearby parks in which such activities as fishing and shooting will be emphasized and prizes awarded.

Would Heighten Interest

The purpose for holding such an outing, members have pointed out, would be to heighten public interest in the club's program and to raise money for projects, particularly the winter feeding of pheasants and ducks. Last winter, about 1,500 ducks were fed at their haven on the Fox river east of the city and an unestimated number of pheasants at hoppers which have been built in game preserves nearby. Although many farmers helped the cause by donating feed, the winter's program was costly.

Chamberlain said yesterday that the shipment of 350 pheasant chicks has been delayed and will not reach the city until next Wednesday, June 23. The tiny birds will be placed in a pen at the Alex Conkey farm and released in game reserves when they are six or eight weeks old.

He stated that members of the club who supervised the planting of 2,000 evergreen trees on the Thousand Islands over a week ago are making regular inspections and have reported favorably on the progress of the seedlings.

Study Club Hears Talk on Hawaii at Kimberly Meeting

Kimberly — Pineapple and sugar cane growing are the most important industries in Hawaii. Natives use the inside of the pineapple in the manufacture of citric acid and the outside is used for a feed for cattle and the tops are planted for the next year's crop, Mrs. S. F. Shattuck, Neenah, explained in a talk on Hawaii at the First Presbyterian church at 7:45 Wednesday evening. Cattle raising and deep sea fishing also are major industries.

The speaker continued that Hawaii is perhaps the only country that has so many races and so few race problems. The climate is wonderful and there is only a variation of ten degrees from the winter and the summer.

In 1795 all the islands were unionized. In 1790 explorers sailed there, followed by missionaries. These groups continued to sail to that part of the country which are the first to constitute civilization there and in 1900 the territorial government was established.

Pictures of many different parts of the country and their activities were shown by Mrs. Shattuck. This program was sponsored by the Kimberly Study club and was opened with a piano selection by Miss Jane Ann Malcolm and a prayer offered by the Rev. C. Kilpatrick.

Vernon Menting, Combined Locks, was fined $10 and costs in the Kimberly justice court, Monday evening, for speeding on Kimberly avenue. Chief of Police John Bernardy made the arrest.
